THREE ITALIAN COLUMNS MOVING UP FOR COUP DE GRACE

Vinci Locks Himself In Cellar

A new portrait of the United States Secretary of State, Mr. William Cordell Hull, as he was interviewed for Hearst Metrophone News in Washington on the Italo-Ethiopian situation.

FEARS OF CLASH IN CAPITAL

DEGRENET ESCAPES BUT IS RECAPTURED

THRILLING CHASE BY ABYSSINIAN SOLDIERS IN TAXIS

Addis Ababa, Yesterday.
The Italian Minister, Signor Vinci, and Colonel Caldiani, the Military Attache, have locked themselves in the Legation, refusing to leave until the last of the Italian consular staff has safely departed. A strong force of cavalry and infantry is guarding the Legation. The Abyssinians are reluctant to use force in order to eject Signor Vinci, but it is feared it may be necessary. The Emperor is considering the situation personally.
Signor Degrenet, the Second Italian Secretary, who escaped from the train in which the rest of the Legation staff were travelling to Djibouti, was captured after a thrilling chase by soldiers on motor-bicycles and in taxis. Signor Degrenet finally surrendered and was taken to the station in a taxi and rejoined the train under a strong guard.—Reuter.

Asmara: A radiogram to a semi-official German news agency, from the headquarters of General de Bono, states that the official ceremonial accompanying the submission of the Governor of the East Tigre Territory, Halle Selassie Gussa, the brother-in-law of the Abyssinian Emperor, took place on Friday. General Gussa being in the uniform of a European general, and fully armed.

General Gussa told press representatives that he was already fighting on the Italian side, as he had always been a friend of Italy, and added that he hopes with her help to civilise the territory he governs.
He also expressed the conviction that all troops under his command would follow his example. The general opinion is that by this act the province of Makala can be regarded as officially conquered by Italy.

ARMAMENTS RACE

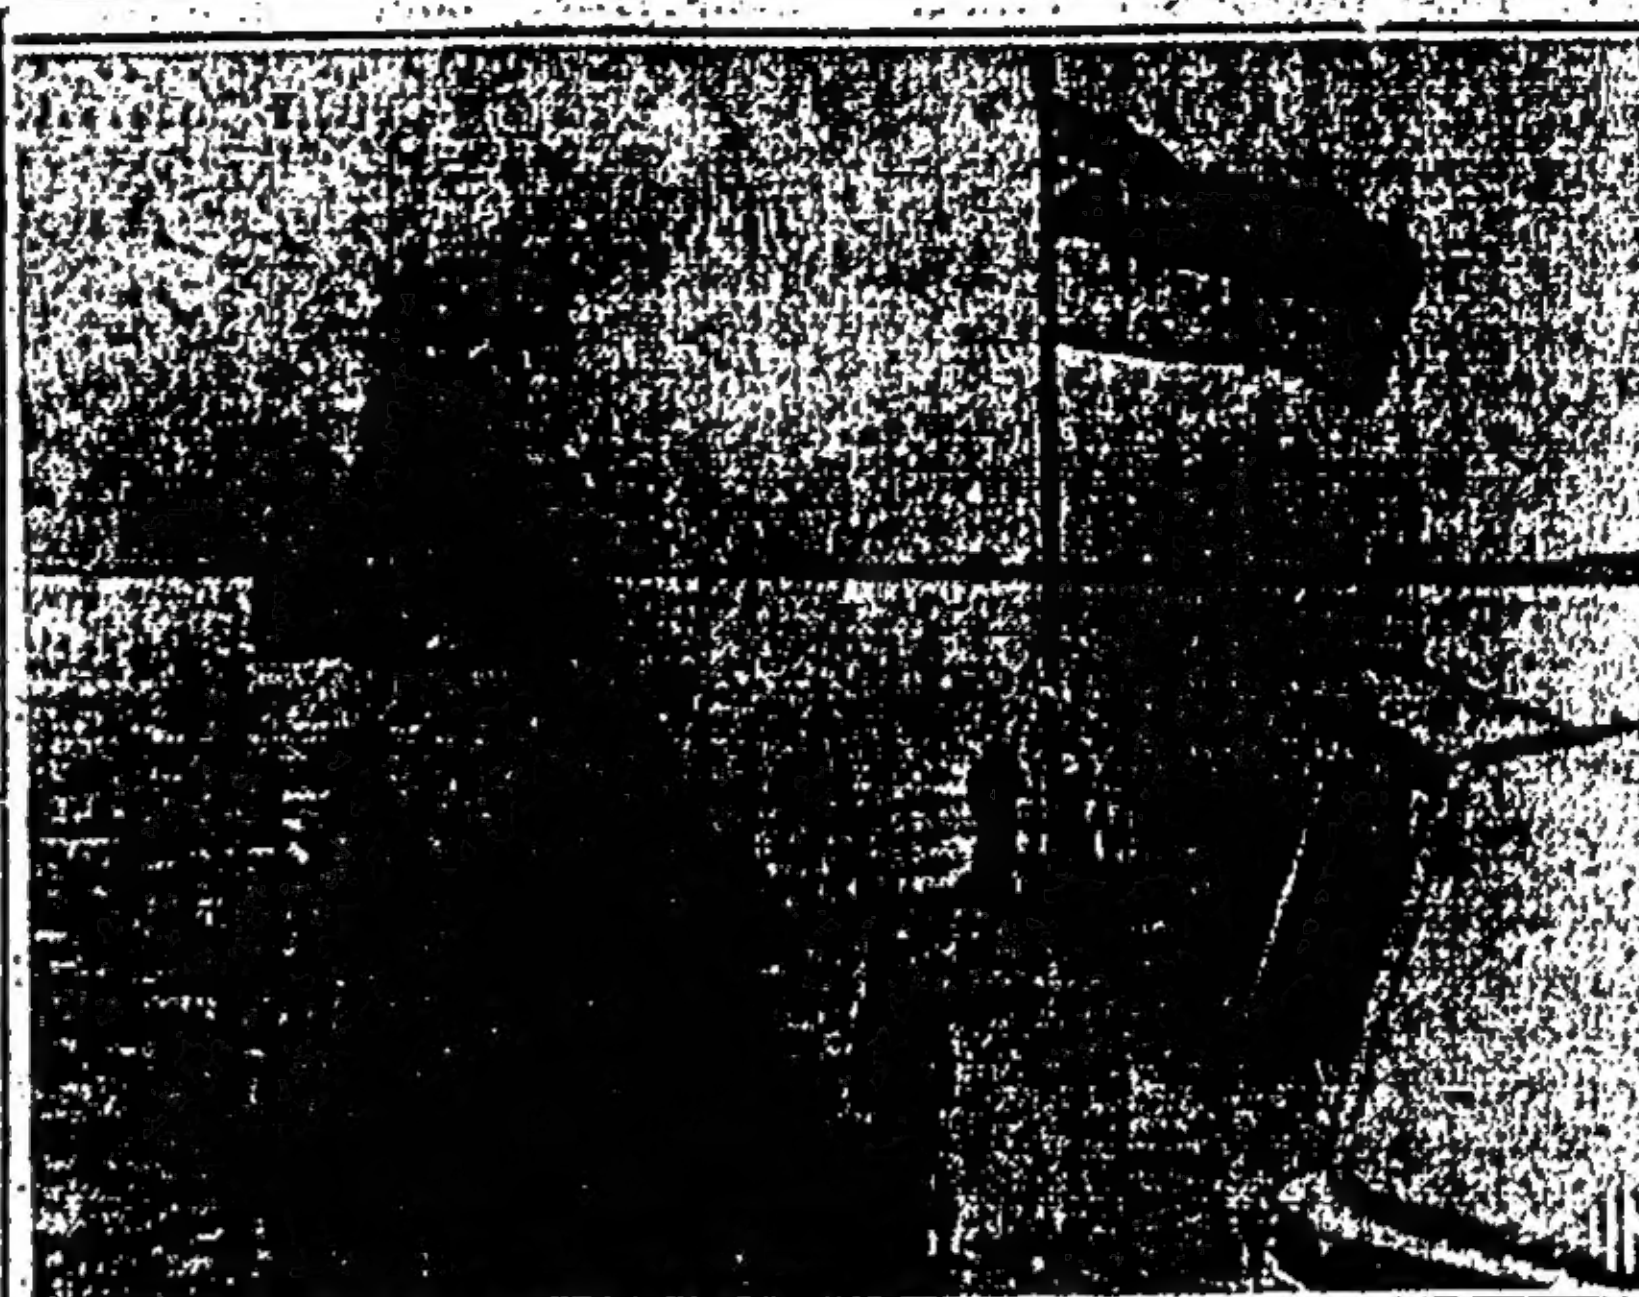

Note Of Warning By Major Attlee

London, Yesterday.
The new leader of the Labour Party, Major J. H. Attlee, in his first speech since his election to that office, emphasised that matters upon which there were differences of opinion in the Labour movement were much smaller than those they held in common.
They were united in a resolve to maintain peace. They believed that, even yet, if the nations of the world in the League of Nations would honestly and wholeheartedly apply immediate sanctions the present war should be brought to an end, but constant care would be needed lest support of the league was used to start a new armaments race.—British Wireless Service.

EXAMINATION OF NAVIGATORS

Large Number Of Applicants

Nanking, Yesterday.
In view of the large number of applicants, the Ministry of Communications has decided to extend the date of registration for participation in the examination for navigators from October 16 to November 10.
The examination will be held between November 20 and December 15 at Shanghai, Tientsin and Hankow.—Central News Agency.

The assembling in the Mediterranean of large units of the British Fleet, as shown above, leads observers to believe that Great Britain is ready to intercede in the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel.

VOLLEY-BALL TEAM WINS AT NATIONAL GAMES

Shanghai, Yesterday.
Yesterday's programme at the China National Games, which were held at the new Civic Centre Athletic Stadium before a huge gathering, was featured by the outstanding successes of Malaya, both men and women securing wins in the track and field events, while four women enjoyed a meritorious triumph in the 100 Metres sprint, all securing the right to enter the final!

In the finals of the Men's Broad Jump S. A. Yeh, of Malaya, took first place with 6.78 metres, while C. W. Wang and C. K. Chang, both of Shanghai, came second and third.

A new National record was established in the Men's 800 Metres race by L. R. Chia, of Shanghai, who clocked 2 minutes 31 seconds, while in the Women's Discus Throw Miss Y. T. Chen, of Shanghai, reached 30.055 metres for a new National record.

During the heats for the Women's 80 Metres Low Hurdles, Miss F. H. Hsu and Miss H. H. Tsao, both of Malaya, qualified for the finals, while in the Men's 200 Metres sprint C. C. Fu and H. W. Hsu, also of Malaya, qualified for the semi-finals.

OUTSTANDING TRIUMPH

Malayan Chinese women secured an outstanding success in the 100 Metres sprint when four competitors, the Misses F. Y. Hsu, Y. C. Teng, C. C. Chen and K. C. Chen entered the final, while the Malayan men, not to be outdone, secured three places in the final of the 110 Metres High Hurdles, C. C. Li, T. H. Lin and M. H. Yang qualifying.

KWANGTUNG SUCCESSES AT GAMES

SOCCER TEAM WINS BY NINE GOALS

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM OVERWHELM TSINGTAO

Shanghai, Yesterday.
The Kwangtung football team swamped the Shantung eleven by nine clear goals in the Second Round of the Association Football competition at the China National Games to-day.

The Kwangtung team kept the ball in Shantung territory for the majority of the game, while their own goal was only threatened once.

The Kwangtung Women's Basketball team also secured a notable victory, defeating the Tsingtao women by 44 points to 25.

The winners displayed perfect team-work and were very accurate in their shooting.—Reuter.

AIRCRAFT DESIGN

Opinion Of American Constructor

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Berlin, yesterday.
Speaking at the annual meeting of the German Research Institute for Aircraft, the chief designer and Vice-President of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Mr. L. Ribbard, declared that aircraft all over the world were still far from perfection, and that designers had a lot to learn.

No country, he continued, could boast of real superiority in aircraft construction, the position actually being that one country had achieved special progress in this, and another country in that direction.

Turning to the much-discussed question of flight in the stratosphere, the speaker expressed the opinion that, as yet, stratospheric flights would be necessary for distances of at least 100 kilometres.—Press News Service.

CENTRAL PLATEAU CONCENTRATION

THREAT OF REVOLT FROM AMASSIAN TRIBE

ABYSSINIANS RESORT TO THE SALTING OF WELLS

Rome, Yesterday.
According to reports from Djibouti it is believed that the advance of three Italian columns is intended to effect a junction on the central Ethiopian plateau. The railway will probably be cut, Addis Ababa being thus isolated.

It is stated that the Italians are at present less than 50 miles from Harrar, from which the railway is reachable.

It is possible that the Italians will in any case allow railway work as far as Direddawa; on the other hand the Abyssinians themselves may cut the line, which is principally important at present for the transport of foodstuffs from the region of Harrar to the capital.

One of the factors facilitating the advance of the Italians on Ogaden is the ill-feeling of some natives owing to the confiscation of their foodstuffs by the Emperor.

The Abyssinians are strongly established at Mhale, awaiting the Italian advance from Adowa. The third Italian column, which invaded Danakil, is pressing on to Asmara, but is hindered owing to the salting of the wells by the Abyssinians.

RED CROSS UNIT FROM SWEDEN

Ready For Abyssinia In Two Weeks

Stockholm, yesterday.
Promises of subscriptions are being received towards the cost of a Swedish Red Cross ambulance for Abyssinia.

It is expected that the unit will be ready for shipment within a fortnight. It consists of five motor ambulances, accompanied by two doctors, a bacteriologist, three nurses and a number of sisters.—Reuter.

PANAMA SUPPORTS SANCTIONS

Argentina's Attitude Doubtful

Panama, yesterday.
The President of the Republic, Dr. Harmodio Arias, has announced that Panama will participate in the sanctions against Italy with other members of the League.

Buenos Aires: In view of Argentina's ties of friendship with Britain, France and Italy, the war in Abyssinia is regarded with anxiety.

The newspaper Nacion hopes that France will exercise a moderating influence against extreme measures such as a blockade.—Reuter.

under article XVI of the Covenant are steadily proceeding in Geneva and a further meeting of the co-ordinating committee will be held this evening.

It is hoped it will have before it the report of its financial sub-committee, which this morning had under consideration recommendations for the suppression of all credits to Italy.

The sub-committee is under the chairmanship of the Greek delegate, M. Maximos.

ITALIAN PROTEST
London: Geneva reports that Italy has sent a note to the League protesting against the sanctions imposed yesterday.—Reuter.

Peaceful Colonial Enterprise

Asmara: News of the submission of local Abyssinian leaders is trickling in from all parts of occupied or menaced territory. The Italian advance is assuming the appearance of almost a peaceful colonial enterprise.

After contact with Generals and soldiers and visits to hospitals Reuter described the reports of huge Italian losses as nonsense.—Reuter.

$5,000,000 LONDON BONDS TO BE ISSUED

MORE FACTORIES TO BE ERECTED

CENTRAL AUTHORITIES APPROVE PLAN

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
Five million dollars of Reconstruction Loan bonds will be issued by the Provincial Department of Finance some time this month. An attempt is being made to sell the bonds in Shanghai, with the approval of Dr. H. H. Kung, Minister of Finance.

Certain foreign banks in Shanghai have been unofficially approached to sell the bonds in view of their close business connection with local Government offices.

The issue of these bonds has been approved by the Central authorities, hence they are likely to be circulated outside of Kwangtung. The products of the cement factory at Sai Chuen are security for this loan. When the money is realised it will be used for the erection of more Government factories.

JAPAN'S NEW POLICY TOWARDS CHINA

Momentous Meeting In Dairen

Dairen, Yesterday.
Four Major-Generals, Okamura, of the Tokyo General Staff, Itagaki, Vice-Chief of Staff, of the Kwangtung Army, Tada, Commander of the North China garrison, and Isogai, Military Attache to China, are attending the conference opening here to-morrow, at which General Okamura is explaining Japan's new policy towards China.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

Warsaw, Yesterday.—The Government has resigned.—Reuter.

London: The New Zealand All Blacks secured their eighth rugby win yesterday when they beat the South of Scotland by 11 points to 8.—Reuter.

Germany's Withdrawal

London, yesterday.—It was announced in Geneva this morning that the German Government have paid all outstanding dues to the League of Nations, amounting to 5,000,000 gold francs. Germany's withdrawal from the League on October 31, at the expiration of two years' notice of her intention to do so will therefore become effective.

Under article I of the Covenant any member may withdraw after two years' notice, provided that all its international obligations and all its obligations under the League Covenant have been fulfilled at the time of withdrawal.—British Wireless Service.

SHORT STORY

The Unconsidered Trifle

By BRANDON FLEMING

THE two men faced each other. Neither spoke for some moments. Wilder, standing with clenched hands, was white and drawn. Ensor leant back in his chair, smoking quietly, his hard eyes fixed on Wilder's strained face.

Ensor spoke first. "You can take it or leave it," he said curtly. "It's all you'll get."

Wilder did not move. Ensor took up his glass from the small table by his chair and drank.

"Three hundred pounds—and be out of the country in two days. Those are my terms. I shan't alter them by a penny or an hour. Three hundred pounds and freedom—or certainly not less than five years' penal servitude."

He put his glass down and sat up impatiently.

"Well, which is it to be?"

Wilder's face whitened. "Three hundred—when I have put more than as many thousands into the business! You have a great idea of fairness, George Ensor!"

"Those are my terms," Ensor repeated. "I will not discuss them any further. You can please yourself."

"You are seizing this opportunity to force me out of the business and keep my capital for yourself," Wilder exclaimed furiously.

Ensor shrugged his shoulders. "People must pay for their crimes," he retorted. "I consider I am treating you very leniently. You have not only defrauded me as your partner, but you have misused—I put it mildly—money entrusted to the firm."

"Your own dealings with the firm's money have not always been beyond suspicion," Wilder sneered.

"Possibly not," Ensor returned easily; "but I have been wise enough to keep within the law—and you have been unwise enough to go outside it. That is the difference."

"I have told you," Wilder said eagerly, "I will undertake to replace every penny I have taken within six months."

Ensor rose.

"You have had my answer to that suggestion—I refuse. I will not allow you to have any further connection, directly or indirectly, with the business. You shall not enter the office again. I have given you the choice of two things. You must decide now which you are going to take."

He turned away, and, going to the open French windows, looked out into the dull, close night. Although there was a busy street within a hundred yards, a curious quietness seemed to hang over the garden. Perhaps the great trees all round shut out the sounds of the movement and traffic. The masses of foliage stood out darker than the sky behind them, unmoving in the still air.

"The rain has stopped," Ensor said.

He turned back.

"I can only give you another five minutes," he said. "Someone is coming to see me at ten."

"A woman, I suppose?" Wilder retorted.

Ensor smiled unpleasantly. "It is possible! A very foolish one—who has been almost as unwise in her way as you have been in yours. I am afraid the interview will be a trying one."

If he had noticed the change that sprang into Wilder's face, the sudden alertness, the narrowing of the eyes, he might have taken warning. But he had gone back to the table and drained his glass. Wilder controlled himself with an effort.

"So that is why your household staff have all been sent out for the evening?" he said slowly. "To leave you a clear field for your—or—interview with the lady?"

Sudden anger blazed into Ensor's face.

"Please leave my private affairs alone," he said harshly. "You have quite enough to do to look after your own."

Wilder laughed.

"It would be interesting to know her errand—at this time of night," he said carelessly.

They looked at each other steadily. Ensor was hard and lowering.

"My terms have changed," he said deliberately. "They are now two hundred instead of three. You have one minute to make up your mind."

He turned his back on Wilder, began to pour himself out another drink. The face of the man behind him was convulsed with an expression of savage hatred. His hands were so tightly clenched that the veins stood out on them like cords. On his left there was a table of Oriental curios.

His fingers closed over the hilt of a long curved knife.

Ensor drank, and put his glass down. The sound of a movement caused him to turn quickly. He saw Wilder's livid face—the knife in his hand.

"You fool!" he cried sharply.

"Put that thing down!"

He drew back, putting out his hands to ward off the blow—too late. A dreadful tearing pain he crumpled up, choking, on the floor.

Wilder stood still, looking down at the body. His first sensation was one of a curious surprise at what had happened.

Ensor was dead. He, Richard Wilder, had killed him. A murderer.

He passed a hand across his forehead. He was a murderer. He had taken up that ugly curved knife with the deliberate intention of killing Ensor—and driven it home with pitiless strength. The knife remained in the wound, the handle jutting out from the huddled figure on the floor. A dark stain was spreading on the carpet.

He drew back. He was rather pleased at his own coolness.

He felt no regret or remorse for what he had done. It was Ensor's own fault. The fool had driven him to it. It served him right for attempting to force him out of his fair share of the business. For a moment he even felt a little proud of this demonstration that he was not to be taken advantage of in such a fashion.

Ensor was the only man in the world who had known of his defalcations. There was no one else. And Ensor was dead.

He glanced at the clock on the mantel-piece. It was five minutes to ten. In another five minutes this woman, whoever she was, would come.

He looked round carefully. There were one or two signs of his own presence to be removed. He pushed the chair he had sat upon back to its usual position, and smoothed the cushions. He did not intend to make any mistake. There would be no clue to point to himself. He took out his handkerchief and carefully wiped the handle of the knife without disturbing it. Then he went on quickly to wipe everything else he might have touched.

Putting the handkerchief back in his pocket he made another careful scrutiny of the room. There were many famous cases in which some stupid little point had been overlooked, and had led to detection—something that a child should not have neglected. He would not be caught like that. He was going to be much too careful.

There should be no unconsidered trifle, no fatal little slip.

Nothing whatever to suggest that he had been in the room, or in the house.

At the door he stopped for a final glance round. Not a thing there that could point to Richard Wilder... Not one. He took out his handkerchief again and put it over the handle of the door before he opened it. In the dark hall he felt his way to the table and took up his hat. Cautiously opening the front door, he slipped out of the house. For a moment he stood still, listening. His senses almost painfully taut.

Then he crept quickly round by the wall.

The house stood some way back from the road, and was hidden by trees and a high fence. There was a semicircular drive from one gate to another. Wilder went round to the garage yard where he had left his car. Standing by it he made certain that no one approaching the house by either of the gates could see it. Then he went on further round to the far corner at the back of the house where he could watch the library windows.

It was a desperate chance, but he did not hesitate. He felt perfectly safe. He was quite sure he had not overlooked the unconsidered trifle.

Mainly for Women FASHIONS' Influence In Jewelry

ANYTHING and everything that is whispered or touted as a fashion influence sooner or later finds its miniature in costume jewellery.

Before any one trend can be sifted from a new season collection of daytime and evening clothes the jewellers are out with it in the shape of clips, necklaces, bracelets, fobs, belt buckles, which,
if they do confuse the fashion issue, are at least fun to wear in the meantime.

Considering that the bulk of it costs one or two dollars (United States currency) a throw we are not expected to take it too seriously.

Maharance Clip

There is the fan-shaped clip of rhinestones and emeralds imposingly launched as the "Maha-rance of Padua" throat clip. Fans, we are told, will have a tremendous influence this autumn.

The vegetable garden will not go to seed this year, it seems.
Vegetable clips, gay little boutonnieres of green peas, radishes, red peppers and carrots will continue to flourish as colour accents for dark dresses and hats. Artichokes do not stop with bracelets.
You can have a whole set of the homely stuff. "Monkey on the wrist" is the newest of the dangle bracelets on a braided leather strap.

In their effort "to prevent the deep, rich tones of the Renaissance from becoming dull and monotonous" the jewellers suggest that they be "lighted up" with crystal or "spotlighted" with buttons, buckle, matching earrings and bracelets. We hope your sense of chic will tell you. "Take it easy."

Woven Wooden

There is more sense to the woven wooden jewellery in both dark and light shades that looks very smart with knitted dresses.

Catalin and metal combinations in relatively simple designs are pretty nice decorations for tailored woollen dresses. And the baguette cocktail jewellery that is copied from the real things—green crystal set with rhinestones —will look handsome with sophisticated black dresses later on.

NEW FABRICS USED

MARVELLOUS fabrics are being used this season, led by soft and loosely-woven woollens, velvets as supple as silk and silks as thick as woollens. Crepe with a sort of blistered surface is much in demand for afternoon frocks, while gold metallic material, frequently quilted, is good for the evening.

A new use for fur has been found on sleeves, backs and revers, but is seldom seen in its traditional place—the collar.

Milliners have fallen into step with the dressmakers to achieve distinction for the woman of fashion, early showings this season offering hundreds of types of hats instead of the usual one acknowledge "good."

DULL WIVES PROVE MOST SUCCESSFUL

HAVE you noticed that the most successful wives are often very dull women? The average man does not want excitement and amusement in the home. He wants somebody comfortable, cheerful and reliable.

Men leave home because their wives are jealous. There can be nothing on earth more irritating than the woman who turns a mild flatter with an appealing blonde into a serious affair by an exhibition of senseless misery. Of course, it is hard on a wife to grow old while her husband remains young, but it only makes matters worse if she is jealous of every pretty little thing at whom he casts a passing glance.

A large dose of common sense is essential to a successful marriage, but women seem to lose all sense of proportion when their lovers subside into husbands.
They might be happier if they remembered that men are immensely lazy when it comes to breaking the habits of years.

It is the old con. the familiar chair, the pipe in its usual place, and the face to which they have been accustomed that attract them permanently.

Beauty Not Required

The face need not be beautiful, or young, or painted, coiffed and otherwise arranged according to the latest fashion, but it must be welcoming. If there is a recipe for keeping a husband, it is surely to make him feel, not by protestations, but by the pleasurable atmosphere it is not very difficult to induce, that he is more needed and more welcome at home than anywhere else.

FRESHENING RUGS

French chalk in equal quantities and scatter on the rug. Then

Contrasting Suits

Pastel Tweed Topcoat

MAKING CROCHET LACE WHITE

CROCHET lace has an unhappy way of becoming rather yellow—even before we have finished working it. But you can restore its whiteness quite easily and without bleaching it chemically.

You first soak the lace in tepid water, then put it into cold soapy water with one teaspoonful of dissolved borax. Heat it gently, and rinse it out thoroughly afterwards.

HOW TO USE OLD FELT HATS

AN outmoded felt hat can be put to a dozen uses. For instance, pieces of the felt can be cut to fit the bottom of doorsteps, book ends, and heavy lamps.
These can then be glued to the bottoms of the articles and save your tables and floors from scratches.

From bright-coloured hats, small-shaped animals, or fruits can be cut out and two of the same shape sewed together to make a nice needlebook. If you have several hats of one colour, you can make a pair of bedroom slippers or mules by sewing slippershaped pieces of felt on a pair of soles which can be bought cheaply.

EARRINGS TO MATCH

EARRINGS to match the trimming of your spectator sports frocks are now. Any tailor shop at small cost will cover the button-type earrings with a scrap of the trimming material.

This snappy two piece frock worn by Mary Carlisle, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player, is one of the many smart styles we have on show.

CLUB ROUTED BY ATHLETIC

Too Much Vigour Mars Encounter

TWO PENALTIES AWARDED

The Second Division encounter between the Athletic and the Club juniors on the Caroline Hill ground yesterday resulted in a win for the Chinese eleven by 4 goals to 1.

Many interesting movements were witnessed throughout, but bad finishing and too much vigour marred what might have been a very interesting game. The Athletic were decidedly the better team, and fully deserved their win, their combined movements and general methods being far more direct than those of the Club.

The Athletic attacked from the start, and Sterling was early called upon to save a fast, high shot from Yeung Kan Po. Play was quickly transferred to the other end, however, and Greenburg, who was very favourably placed, should have scored, but his effort was feeble and Lee Kwok Koo had little difficulty in clearing.

Penalty Missed
A scrumming in the Club area a few minutes later, resulted in the Athletic being awarded a penalty for "hands" against Railton. The Athletic missed this opportunity though, Lo Hun Cheung placing the ball straight into the hands of Sterling. The exchanges for the next quarter of an hour or so were fairly even, then from a fine run down and centre by Tso Lai Yuo, the Athletic took the lead through Lai Wah-tai. Neither side could increase the score before the changeover came.

The second half opened in grand style, the Athletic taking the ball down from the kick-off for Pang Kam-hing to increase their lead with a splendid shot. The Club rallied, and for a foul on Greenburg were awarded a penalty, and Fuxman, who was well placed, shot successfully in reducing the margin.

But the Athletic, however, the Club appeared to fall to pieces, and the Athletic, who had almost complete control of the game, added further goals through the Lin-yue and Lo Hung-cheong.

IN spite of the superhuman efforts of Bertie Gosano and his forwards, the St. Joseph's Football Club managed to stave off the challenge of the Recreio in their First Division League soccer encounter yesterday at King's Park, when they shared two goals and thus retained the leadership of the League and their unbeaten record.

The Club were fully extended by Kowloon in their "derby" encounter at the Valley and just managed to pull through by the odd goal in five, as the result of a last-minute goal by Elliott, while the East Lanes and the Lincolns were featured in a titanic struggle which resulted in the second drawn encounter in the Senior League, both teams scoring twice.

The Fusiliers, as expected, won their match against Stonecutters. In the Second Division an exciting encounter was witnessed between the Fusiliers and the East Lanes, a draw resulting, while the Athletic trounced the Club juniors to assume the leadership. The Fusiliers, by virtue of their win over the Railway, and the Chinese Police, as the result of their win over the Lincolns, now lead in the Third Division.

SENSATIONAL WIN AT KING'S PARK

Lincolns Swamped By Chinese Police

SOLDIERS LACK STAMINA

A very fast and keen soccer encounter was seen yesterday on the Chatham Road ground, when the Chinese Police, exceptionally defeated the Lincolns in their Third Division soccer encounter, by 5 goals to 1, three of the Police goals being scored during the last five minutes of the game.

Both teams gave an excellent display of fast and clever football, the Lincolns, however, tripping quickly towards the end.

Rush opened the score for the Lincolns with a clever shot from an acute angle, and then, after a period of attacks at either end, Wong Hing found the net for the Police.

After the interval both teams worked themselves practically to a standstill in their attempts to penetrate to the goal area.

Through a misunderstanding in the Lincolns defence, Wong Hing seized the opportunity to run through and register again. Thereafter the Police held the upper hand and registered three further goals through Hong Hing and Wong Man-wai (2).

PLUCKY EFFORT BY UNIVERSITY

East Lanes Wait For Deciding Goal

A close and exciting encounter was witnessed in the Second Division yesterday when the East Lanes, beat the University by the odd goal in three after being a goal in arrears at the interval.

Two changes were made in the East Lanes' team, Cpl. Ball deputising for Coster, and Griffin coming in at outside-left in place of Ratcliff, who took his place in the first team.

The first 20 minutes saw the "Varsity" confined to their own area, but from a breakaway Blake dashed between the backs to score a somewhat lucky goal, which was greatly against the run of play. Griffin and Elliott played splendidly on the East Lanes left wing and were indeed unfortunate not to have equalised, and just before half time Blake shone with another amazing turn of speed and finished up by grazing the bar with a beautiful drive. At this period, the University were unfortunately enough to lose the services of Yong, their leader, through an injury, and he did not return to the field.

In the second half the soldiers were rewarded for their superiority when Bowker netted with a "drooping shot." Shortly afterwards Elliott scored the winning goal from a pass by Eckerley.

LINCOLNS UNBEATEN BY EAST LANCS

Goal In Last Minutes Saves Record

RIDLEY AND BALDRI IN BEST FORM

The Lincolns have yet to register their first win this season. Yesterday at Sookunpoo they were lucky to retain their unbeaten record when they scored in the last few minutes to share the points and four goals with the East Lanes in their premier League soccer encounter.

The Lincolns and the East Lanes have been neighbours for two years and a spirited rivalry has always existed between them. At soccer the Lincolns have always held the upper hand, not once have the East Lanes registered a win, and yesterday's game was their last chance; the Lincolns leave the Colony before their next League encounter is due, and they will leave with at least one record, that of not having lost to the East Lanes at soccer.

Ridley Brilliant

The teams were very well matched and a good display was given by both sides, but the Lincolns were superior in attack. Ridley played a wonderful game, working his way through the East Lanes' defence with apparent ease, and his passes to Baldry and Higgins were always accurate. Baldry was on form too, his centres being deadly accurate, nine times out of ten dropping right in the goalmouth, and Higgins was only frustrated in his attempts to score by the excellent keeping of Harmsworth. Ash was superb in the defence and had Sandford completely tied up, the diminutive East Lanes' goal-scoring being unable to do nothing.

Strengthened South China Team Scores Five Times

The combined R.A.S.C. & R.A.O.C. team was again unlucky at Sookunpoo yesterday when they lost their Second Division soccer encounter against South China by 5 goals to 1, four of the victors' goals being scored in the first half.

The Chinese were the better team, but they were not worthy of such a decisive win; at least two of their goals were very doubtful, the players being perilously near the goal-line. Clarke scored a goal for the Services' team in the first five minutes, but it was disallowed owing to off-side, despite the fact that a Chinese defender was actually on the goal-line with the

A real thrill at the motor races at Altamont, New York, provided as Charlie Engels of Dayton, Ohio, still at the wheel of his racer, ploughs over a retaining wall. He had just side-wiped car 24, driven by Doc McKenzie, causing the latter to turn completely around. Both drivers were shaken up but neither suffered injuries.

ELLIOTT GIVES CLUB TWO POINTS

BUT KOWLOON SHOULD HAVE WON

A VERY scrappy game was witnessed in the First Division of the local soccer League yesterday when the Club just managed to beat Kowloon by 3 goals to 2, a last-minute goal off the toe of Elliott, who hooked the ball past the unsuspecting Boyes just before the final whistle sounded, giving the Valley team victory.

The Club defence, with the exception of Strange and Sykes, was very poor, the intermediate line failing to display any signs of cohesion while the distribution forward was weak to the extreme. Winch, the Kowloon leader and D. Knox, on their left-wing, were the most dangerous of the mainland forwards and gave the Club defence an anxious time throughout.

Kowloon Unlucky

On the run of the play Kowloon should have won, a penalty against them in the second half proving their undoing, however, and Elliott's last-minute goal placing the issue beyond doubt.

The Club forwards, were badly off the mark and could, do very little right. Time and again openings were thrown away.

D. Knox proved to be an opportunist and fully deserved his first and second goals.

Boyes the Kowloon custodian, played a splendid game and, but for his clever anticipation on the very rare occasions the Club forwards found their form, Kowloon might have suffered defeat by a bigger margin.

D. Knox Scores
Kowloon opened the scoring after a lightning attack, a first-time drive being splendidly evaded by Roger who, however, pushed the ball out for D. Knox, to follow up and net.

The Club soon retaliated and, following one of their few good movements, Forrow scored the equaliser.

An unfortunate accidental foul in the area gave the Club their lead when Forrow netted from the "spot" but D. Knox scored a second time for Kowloon, from a corner, to level the scores once again.

Play became very ragged from then onwards and Elliott surprisingly gave the Club victory when he hooked the ball past Boyes from a corner kick.

Club:—Rodger, Sykes and S. Strange; Skinner, Gilchrist and Nichols, L. E. Lammert, Forrow, Elliott, B. Williams and Hekford.

Kowloon: Boyes—Everest and Eastman; Kemp, Boyd and G. White; W. Knox, V. White, Winch, Hesse and D. Knox.

SAINTS HELD BY RECREIO IN CLOSE GAME

Marksmen Need More Practice

BELTRAO FINDS TRUE FORM

King's Park was the scene of an exciting First Division soccer encounter yesterday when two old rivals, the Recreio and St. Joseph's clashed, and a finely contested game ended in a draw, both sides scoring once.

St. Joseph's took an early lead and held on to it grimly. They enjoyed the best of the first half exchanges, and less indecision in front of goal, (they had chances of scoring during this spell of superiority) might have resulted in them taking both points instead of only one.

The Recreio were again without the services of A. V. Gosano, but Silva proved an able substitute, settling down after a shaky start to form a splendid defensive partnership with Bowen.

Beltrao returned to form just at the right time, and his valuable display yesterday helped considerably to check the swiftly executed raids of the St. Joseph's forwards. Neither wing-half showed to much advantage, being caught frequently out of position, and careless in their passing.

Forwards Falter

The forwards had innumerable good openings presented them, especially during the second half, but failed to make the most of them, Castillo and Alves being the only two with any idea of where the goal was. Bertie Gosano put in a lot of hard work, but his efforts failed to cover much ground, and the line as a combination gave a very inferior display.

Saints Take Lead

St. Joseph's defence was very solid, with Costa outstanding. The tall left-back's coolness in an emergency and his unfurled kicking and headwork upset the moves of the opposing forwards time and again.

LIGA PORTUGUESA TRIUMPH

St. Joseph's Juniors Outplayed

The Liga Portuguesa were easily the better team in their Third Division soccer match against St. Joseph's on the latter's ground at Happy Valley yesterday, scoring three goals without reply.

The Portuguese eleven made an early attack on the Saints' goal and so frequently did they invade it that Marques did extremely well to keep his charge intact at times. Aycock and Rahman, supported him in a very able manner.

Assis opened the scoring, Sousa added a second with a splendid drive, and Assis again scored after the interval.

FUSILIERS FIND R.A. EASY VICTIMS

EXCELLENT TEAM WORK DISPLAYED

PRICE EXCELS IN LOSERS' DEFENCE

THE brilliant defensive work by Price, the Artillery right-back, was the only outstanding performance in a very one-sided First Division soccer encounter between the Fusiliers and Artillery (Stonecutters) on the Military ground at Happy Valley, when the former, 'overwhelming the Artillery throughout, emerged victors by 3 goals to nil.

Play throughout was mostly confined to the Artillery half, the Gunners playing a defensive game only, and the manner in which Keneghan and Ellis fed their forwards should have resulted in a Fusilier win by a much greater margin. The shooting generally of the Fusilier forwards, however, was very poor, Roberts and Sullivan being presented with numerous opportunities for scoring but repeatedly failing owing to wild kicking.

After 15 minutes' play, during which time the Artillery goal was continually threatened, Talbot scored with a good shot from 20 yards out. The excellent team work of the Fusilier halves and forwards was only frustrated by the efforts of Price, ably assisted by Coles.

The Gunners never looked like scoring and the occasions on which the ball travelled anywhere near the Fusilier goal were from high kicks badly misjudged, and Rowlands dealt in an easy manner with the clearances.

The first half ended with the Fusiliers leading by a single goal. Hall, the Artillery custodian, must be commended for the level-headed way he dealt with many close shots, tipping over the crossbar and clearing well with confidence.

On the resumption of play the Gunners were kept on the defensive, the Fusilier attack having lost none of its former combination. Roberts, the Fusilier left wing, nearly scored with an oblique shot from close in, but the ball struck the upright and rebounded into play.

Hunt's Misfortune

Hunt had the misfortune to handle in the penalty area following a clearance by Hall and Harrison scored from the spot. Talbot then sent in a hefty shot which looked a certain goal, but Hall cleared well.

Shortly before time, Sullivan, from a very acute angle, saw his shot rebound off the upright into the net.

Smith and Forbes, the Artillery wingers, playing well when fed, were given little opportunity of attacking mainly through lack of combination in the whole forward line.

Fusiliers—Rowlands; Wheeler and Keating; Wanklyn, Keneghan and Ellis; Hughes, Harrison, Sullivan, Talbot and Roberts.

Artillery—Hall, Price and Coles; Coyle, Hunt and Hall; Forbes, Gardiner, Barclough, Adams and Smith.

RECREIO BEAT KOWLOON BY 5 GOALS TO 2

But Should Have Made Double Figures

POOR HABIT OF DRIBBLING BALL INTO NET

A very one-sided Second Division soccer encounter at King's Park yesterday between Recreio and Kowloon resulted in a convincing win for the former by 5 goals to 2.

The Recreio should have reached double figures, and their exasperating tactics in front of goal—continually endeavouring to walk the ball into the net instead of shooting—might have cost them the game against a more enterprising side.

The strength of the Recreio lay in their almighty line of forwards, in which Castillo distinguished himself by scoring the "hat-trick." Admirable support by Campos and Marques kept the line well together, and Kowloon were continuously under pressure.

Humphreys played a grand defensive game for the losers, and was well aided by Hannibal, both players exerting their utmost to keep the score down. The forwards appeared timid, and useless, with Fuxman the only one to make any serious effort to pierce the Recreio's defence.

Campos sent the Recreio ahead after 9 minutes, and, continuing to press strongly, Castillo placed them in a commanding position with three good goals shortly afterwards. Just before half-time Fuxman took his first chance, and went through to score a well-merited goal.

The second half was merely a repetition of the first, with the Recreio adding only one more goal, through Campos, while Porcira scored the best goal of the game for Kowloon, a drive from the left wing.

During this period Campos unleashed a penalty for the Recreio, and the game ended with the Portuguese having matters entirely their own way.

SHANGHAI WIN INTERPORT

LOCAL BOWLERS LOSE
BY 19 TO 12

BRIERLEY RESPONSIBLE FOR RUBBER VICTORY

GLOVER FINE TACTICIAN

FIELDING a powerful four yesterday, the Shanghai bowls team beat the Hong Kong representatives by 19 shots to 12. As they also won last Thursday the Interport honours for 1935 go to our visitors and the final Interport, which is to be played at the Kowloon B.G.C. next Wednesday, is of no consequence as far as deciding where the Prentice Cup will abide for the next twelve months. This is the third time that Shanghai has beaten the Colony on local greens.

Although the spectators, among whom were His Excellency, the Officer Administering the Government, the Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith, to whom the teams were introduced on his arrival, and His Honour the Police Judge, Mr. Justice R. E. Lindsell, were undoubtedly disappointed at the outcome of the match, as all would have liked to see the third Interport hold the significance it now lacks, from a bowling standpoint the match was superb.

A finer game has not been witnessed for a very long time. On yesterday's showing the selectors both here and in Shanghai could not be justly condemned for all eight players played magnificently. Our bowlers were fighting an uphill struggle throughout, and, although they managed to come on level terms once, they did not obtain the lead on one single occasion.

The sensation of the match was J. W. Brierley, who, during the two previous matches in which he played, was anything but outstanding. Yesterday he rose to unequalled heights, and very nearly, and this without any reflection on the play of our own No. 2, McKelvie, who was himself outstanding, placed his opposite number in the shade, by his uncanny accuracy.

Taking all things into consideration there was very little to choose between the two rinks, and with all fairness to Shanghai, who indeed would be the first to admit the point, our visitors had more than their fair share of the luck. Hong Kong was on the defensive all the time, and, whereas Shanghai were content with one or two well guarded bowls on the jack, Hong Kong were required to play a somewhat smashing game to find their way to the jack. Glover showed himself to be a superb tactician; he built up his hands with perfect understanding, and seemed to make allowances for almost any contingency.

BLACK JEWS OF ABYSSINIA

Strict Followers Of Mosaic Law

Descended From Comrades Of Sheba's Son

(By IAN COSTER)

THE Black Jews of Abyssinia have announced their intention of fighting for Haile Selassie, King of Kings.

Their real name is Falasha, and they were eloquently described by a London rabbi as "a page torn from the Old Testament." That was in 1914, when there was a considerable pro-Falasha movement in European Jewry.

They are an outcrop of Black Jews, similar to the Mawambis of the French Congo, the Zafy Ibrahim of Madagascar, the Beni Israel of Bombay, the Cochins Jews of the Malabar coast and the Jewish Negroes of New York.

For thousands of years the Falashas seem to have been an unknown backwater off the main stream of Jewry.

They possess the Bible in their own tongue, have strict regard for the Mosaic law, observing the Sabbath, the Passover, the Day of Atonement and the "Day of the Sounding of the Trumpet," practicing circumcision and offering sacrifices and proudly proclaiming themselves of the race of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

First Report

James Bruce, an English traveller, reported in the middle of the 18th century that there were Jews in Abyssinia. That was the first that Europe had heard of the Falashas.

According to their own tradition, they were descended from a host of Israelites who followed the son of Sheba and Solomon back to his mother's country.

The "Almanach de Gotha" accepts the statement that the Kings of Abyssinia sprang from the union of Sheba and Solomon. A local legend colours the story. It records that the ancient Abyssinian capital, Axum, was the seat of a serpent king with an appetite that demanded a virgin each day. Saba, a virgin of high birth and purest spirit, prayed heaven to save her from the monster.

Her prayers were rewarded. A celestial hero descended and slew the serpent. But a speck of the serpent's saliva had fallen on her foot, causing it to wither. To get the advice of Solomon, the wise monarch, Saba (or possibly Sheba) journeyed to him.

Solomon proved himself more than a man of medicine. Saba bore a son, Menelik, who, returning to his father, was recognised and sent away loaded with gifts and honours.

Stamped By Their Name

Falasha means "immigrant." Though they have long residential qualification in Abyssinia the Falashas bear a name which stamps them as foreigners.

In the tenth century their queen Judith (or Eather) is supposed to have dethroned the King of Abyssinia and established a dynasty which lasted for three centuries, but this tradition is doubted.

Through the following centuries there was considerable trouble with the Abyssinians, who having adopted Christianity, sought to convert the Jews with persuasion of fire and sword.

European missionaries of the 19th century were given leave to carry on the work of conversion by gentler methods.

The Rev. H. A. Stern, recording in 1862 his missionary efforts wrote of Falashas:

Their stern, uncompromising sectarianism has been highly beneficial in excluding from their community that licentious profligacy in which all the other inhabitants of Ethiopia riot.

It is generally admitted that Falasha men and women seldom, if ever, stray from the paths of virtue or transgress the solemn law of the Decalogue.

THE WEST INDIAN COLONIES

Visit By Permanent Under-Secretary

London, Yesterday.

The Colonial Office announces that, if circumstances permit, Sir John Maffey, Permanent Under-Secretary for the Colonies, will visit the Colonies in the West-Indian area early next Spring, accompanied by Lady Maffey and Mr. J. B. Sidebotham of the Colonial Office.

Owing to the limited time at his disposal it will not be possible for Sir John Maffey to visit all these Colonies and in some cases only a brief call will be practicable—British Wireless Service.

He found them bathing in rivers before the Sabbath, staunch in the Mosaic creed, moral and hard-working, refusing to eat raw meat. When he told them about religious books they replied: "We have Moses and David." When he told them of Christ, they said: "We keep the law."

Jewry's Interest

Jewry heard of its black brethren and their resistance to Christianity. In 1867 Joseph Halevy, a prominent Orientalist, was sent out by the Alliance Israélite of Paris to investigate. His work was taken over by his pupil, Jacques Faitlovitch, a Polish Jew, who was sent to Abyssinia by the late Baron Edmond de Rothschild.

Faitlovitch returned from his first expedition with two Falasha young men and the following message: "May the Lord God of Israel be praised. Letter sent from Abyssinia by Israelites called Falasha in order that it may reach our brethren in Jewish communities, the great doctors of Jerusalem as well as in the land of the Franks. Peace! Peace! How are you? We are in a state of profound misery."

"In the time of Kings Theodore and John attempts were made forcibly to convert us. Thanks to our prayers a small number of us still remain."

Faitlovitch was at first treated with suspicion, but, having proved that he was not a missionary, he was greeted as the Messiah who would take the Falasha back to Jerusalem.

First Messengers

The two young men he brought back were Ghetie Jeremiah, aged 23, "of robust constitution and quick intellect," and Taamrat Emmanuel, aged 18.

Jeremiah's father had insisted that his son should see Europe, and Emmanuel had won over Faitlovitch by his pleading to go abroad.

Both were put in the Normal School for Teachers in Paris, and both went back to enlighten their countrymen.

Faitlovitch, after three trips to the country, estimated that there were 50,000 Falashas left.

They were intellectually superior to the Abyssinians, and, although primarily an agricultural people, they had shown a special aptitude for trades. They were masons, tanners, basket-makers, architects, blacksmiths, and they did practically all the building work in the country, including the building of churches.

Faitlovitch went round Europe lecturing on them. Pro-Falasha committees were set up in many places, including London, but the effort seemed to die down after the outbreak of war in 1914.

THE PASSING HOUR

EVERY war makes the life of the correspondent more strenuous and less effective. In fact the wonder is that they survive at all. They are very much in the way, and when they succeed in getting through some news they are positively dangerous to one side or the other. For it is a well-recognized dodge of the wily censor to "O.K." a cable about some column that is actively engaged, and then to delay its despatch until the news is absolutely misleading. The military point of view is that the general public has no right whatever to get its news at the risk of the success of an operation. The lives of his men must be a commander's first consideration; and as soon as that is stated it is obviously true. In 1914 when Lord Kitchener went to the War Office he was asked what he proposed to do about war correspondents. He said "If I find one out there I shall have him shot."

WIRELESS

THE question that has been exercising the minds of the old hands is what difference wireless would make. It is so easy now to dispatch a message with a very insignificant apparatus, and it is of the very essence of the business that there would be no submission to the censor, who is the hub of all Press work on active service. No doubt this would be forbidden, but what would be the chances of detection, and what would be the consequences? The chances of detection might be slight in respect of the original dispatch, but overwhelmingly great for ultimate enquiry. It has to be remembered that the very purpose of the dispatch would be publication; and all the papers are examined to see whether what appears corresponds with what has been approved. It is known for whom each man has been licensed to work; and where each man was on any specific date. Identification would be easy.

DURING THE GREAT WAR

LIKE many other inventions, wireless was in its infancy at the time of Armageddon, and had a rapid development. No doubt in Europe there were some comparatively efficient plants; but in the out-of-the-way sidishows wireless consisted of a wagon something like a removing van, with a tall mast. The operator lived and kept all his plant in his wagon, which he shared with his chauffeur. The power available was a mere apology, and it was thought quite up to the mark if it could send a message a hundred miles and get back a code word which indicated that it had been "understood,"—and that only under favourable conditions. Conditions were only favourable on the average from half an hour to two hours in the day—usually about sunset. What one got as a rule was not a message, but a resounding collection of atmospheres that left one quite deaf for a short time. The most frequent answer from the base was "repeat." At any rate, with the modern apparatus, one may take it for granted that Lord Kitchener, if he had had any surreptitious practitioner brought up before him, would certainly have "had him shot."

DR. CONAN DOYLE

THE creator of Sherlock Holmes at one time aspired to win new fame as a war correspondent and was actually out at the base during the third Sudan War. He was very dissatisfied with his success—or failure—for he was not allowed to go out of the censor's sight. But subsequently he thought he would make something out of his experiences and sat down to write a story called "The Tragedy of the Korosko," in which a public school failure makes good by getting off a full dispatch before any of his rivals had had a chance of reaching the camp. He was invited some time later to take the chair at a re-union of colleagues in London, and incidentally asked what his friends thought of his story. To his surprise he was

EVOLUTION OF THE IDEA OF GOD THE BIBLE AS RECORD FINAL EMERGENCE OF THE PERFECT DEITY

(By the Rev. J. N. LEWIS BRYAN)

If you want to study any branch of Science, sooner or later, (and the sooner the better), you will have to get down to some kind of text-book on the subject.

The same thing applies to religion. Thousands of books have been written upon its many aspects, but there is only one real text-book, and that is the Bible. If anything can bring us to the God we need, to the God who must be the foundation and coping-stone of that perfect state we seek to build, surely it should be the inspired writings about Him—the Word of God. And yet, as Studdert Kennedy (on whose book the present series of articles is based) puts it, the Bible does not contain one idea of God, one picture of Him, but many ideas, many pictures. It is in some ways a queer mixture until we begin to sort things out.

"Inspiration" The inspiration of the Bible has been a stumbling-block to many hard-thinking people. They cannot see how any book can be inspired. You can inspire a man to play the piano, but you cannot inspire a piano. The question is not "Is the Bible inspired?" but "Was it written by inspired men?" And the answer is that it certainly was.

What is an inspired man? Surely it means one who, by prayer, by pure and holy living, by deep and earnest thought and by communion with the Unseen, has come into close contact with the Spirit who works in and beyond this wondrous universe of ours. The Bible was written not merely by men, but through men, men exercising all the powers of men with all their inherent weaknesses. The greatest of all the prophets bemoaned the fact that he was a man of unclean lips. It was his inspiration that made him see that fact.

The Bible is not a book in our sense of the word. It is a collection of writings, written in different ages, separated from one another by centuries. It is only to be expected that these men's ideas about God differ, because they were growing all the time. A boy's ideas about his schoolmaster change very quickly as he grows up. A small boy of ten probably looks upon him as a tyrant, a big boy of nineteen looks upon him as a friend. It is the same school-master, but a growing boy.

Ideas Change With Growth So it is with the Bible; it is the same God, but different men who write about Him, so their ideas are different and keep changing as the writers learn the lessons of the past and of their own lives and experiences.

Part of men's discontent with the Bible is due to the fact that they have at the back of their minds the ancient misconception answered with a hearty and general laugh. It was explained that his hero's exploit was only possible by ignoring the censor altogether; that without the "imprimatur" his message would never have been forwarded, and that he himself would have been sent home under strict arrest, with a long sentence of hard labour—if he escaped a worse fate.

RUSSELL OF THE TIMES

IT was in the Crimean War that the correspondents had their heyday. The big newspapers had just reached the stage when such enterprise could be financed and appreciated. But how any C-in-C could allow the famous "Russell of the Times"—who incidentally made the fame of Florence Nightingale, "The Lady with the Lamp," to give away all the deficiencies of stores and mistakes of the Generals to an attentive Russian Staff is hard to understand. Quantities enough the result of his disclosures had an excellent effect in the end by waking up the House of Commons and the War Office. The whole incident seems to belong to an earlier and simpler age, far more than eighty years back in the mist of history.

of an absolutely almighty Being who has only to wave a magic wand to get things done. There is a little trace of this unlimited and supreme Being in the Bible as we found in Nature.

The Bible, like Science, tells us how God has revealed Himself to man, and has made him fit to receive that revelation. It shows us how God had to overcome man's ignorance and imperfection, his rebellion and refusal to learn, and how this process, like everything else in the universe, is a slow and painful one. The God behind the Bible is a God of the Cross. His message, in order to reach our souls, has to overcome the limitations and sins of the men in far-off days whom the Spirit moved to write; and then to overcome the sin and stupidity of the readers in these days whom the Spirit moves to read.

When one sits down to read the Bible, one finds that time is destroyed. One is standing before a long line of Jewish peasants, princes, poets, prophets, each one in the language of his day telling us what God means to him and to the people of his time.

Savagery Of The Past In the dim twilight, dreadful deeds were done that must have wrung the soul of God with pain. He spoke, but men failed to understand. It seems that they were blindly following their own lusts and desires, and giving them His name. That He should have given some of the orders recorded as given to the Israelites to slay men and women, infant and suckling, ox and ass, seems almost beyond belief. All we can make of such passages is to see through them the struggle of the God, revealed in Christ, to reveal Himself to man.

There are in the Bible three distinct periods—the darkness, the twilight and the dawn. The darkness was the darkness of the worship of many gods. The Hebrews, like all the people around them, regarded the doctrine of the one God as a strange and awful novelty. The worship of many gods was as natural and as deeply ingrained in their tradition as the worship of one God is now. These gods were all made in man's image. They were unjust, capricious, cruel, and licentious. Each tribe had its own god who went to war with them and, when a tribe was defeated, the god was defeated. This popular belief is the background of the early Old Testament teaching. It was the belief of the masses of the people.

Evolution And the Bible is the history of the evolution of the majestic belief in one God, who governs the whole earth, who demands of all men not gifts but goodness, not flattery but loyal obedience, not servility but love. The teachers of Israel saw and taught that their God was strong because He was just and good, and that He required His chosen people to be the same; that it was no good trying to bribe Him with gifts and sacrifices, as the neighbouring peoples did, unless they led clean lives.

That is one great truth the Old Testament teaches us about God, and we need to remember it to-day. He only cares about goodness; it is no use going to services and saying prayers unless we try to lead a white life. It is no use giving to charities and building hospitals if the money we give has been dishonestly and cruelly made. In plain words—we must do right. So even the old teachers in the Bible have a great truth about God to teach us.

"War Map" Shows Immense Difficulties Confronting Italians in Ethiopian Campaign

A topographical map of Ethiopia and its approaches, drawn by a staff artist of the London Illustrated News, shows the barriers set up for Italian expeditionary forces by the mountainous terrain of the country, and hints at the routes which any invading forces must follow. THE MOON AT ITS NEAREST

Once In Four Years It Happens

WHEN EVERYTHING WEIGHS LESS ON EARTH

At midnight one night last month the moon was nearer to the earth than at any time during the previous four years. Next night it started to move away again.

At its nearest point it was 221,000 miles away, compared with the average distance of 250,000 miles.

The difference in its appearance is no greater than the difference between looking at St. Paul's Cathedral from a distance of 100 yards and then stepping back one foot and looking at it again.

An official at the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, explained that the nearness of the moon means that such articles as a pencil, a piece of paper, or a cup of tea are made lighter in weight.

This is because the moon exerts a pull on everything on the earth's surface, and its present nearness has a light effect in making the tides higher.

"The fact that, say, a cup of tea is made lighter because the moon is nearer cannot be tested by ordinary weighing because the moon makes the weights and the balances lighter as well," said the official.

"But it has been shown that even the weight of such a small thing is affected.

"If you could have a cup of tea so long that one end of it was more under the influence of the moon than the other—as in the case of the oceans—there would be a rush of tea from one side of the cup to the other, just as there is a rush of sea water from one part of the earth to the other.

"The reason why the moon comes nearer every four years is that it travels on an elliptical path round the earth."

NEW WHARFAGE AT GLASGOW

$7,000,000. Scheme

4½ MILES OF ADDITIONAL QUAY—LENGTH

Glasgow has come to the fore with a plan of industrial development which is based upon a determined optimism.

The plan will cost $7,000,000 to complete. About 4½ additional miles of wharfage are to be provided, the river is to be widened, in one place by 200 feet, and 279 acres of riverside land are to be made available for new industries.

City officials who have helped prepare the plan declare that for anyone to say the Clyde is "down and out" is totally unjustified. Their view is that the district is relatively in a better economic position than "any other port in the world."

Arms Embargo Against Italy

FINANCIAL QUESTION UNDER REVIEW

U.S. NEUTRALITY ACT ONLY BUGBEAR

ROME NOT UNDULY ALARMED

Geneva, Yesterday.

The co-ordinating sub-committee has unanimously decided to lift the embargo on arms and munitions in favour of Abyssinia, but to apply the embargo to Italy. Hungary abstained from voting.

When it meets to-day the financial sub-committee will recommend banning all financial accommodation to Italy.

The co-ordinating committee has established a sub-committee composed of British, French, Greek, Dutch, South African, Rumanian and Polish delegates to deal with financial questions and to tighten up any question of loans to Italy.

Another sub-committee, consisting of Britain, France, Russia and Spain, will examine the question of armaments and key products.

On the suggestion of Mr. Edon it was unanimously agreed that the arms embargo should include any contract already in operation.

It was pointed out that the Roosevelt list was adopted for practical considerations as it seemed to afford the most effective and convenient list that might be included in the embargo.

U.S. NOT LIFTING EMBARGO
Washington: The State Secretary, Mr. Cordell Hull, states that the Neutrality Act prevents the United States from following the League's example of lifting the embargo on arms to Abyssinia.

MR. EDON'S BROADCAST
So far there has been no dailying, declared Mr. Anthony Edon, broadcasting to British listeners on the work of the League. Already 50 nations have given practical expression to their desire to bring the war to an end. "We cannot afford to delay," he said, "when men are being killed and homes shattered. Nowhere would there be more rejoicing than in Britain if Italy were to turn to ways of peace, but we have undertaken solemn obligations from which we shall not shrink. A prompt beginning has been made and, as far as the British Government is concerned, as we have begun so we shall persevere."

"NOT UNDULY ALARMED"
Rome: "We have been for a long time preparing to meet the effects of sanctions and therefore are not unduly alarmed," Reuter has been informed in an authoritative quarter.

His informant added: "Armaments manufacturers will have to sell on credit, as we do not suppose there is much money in Abyssinia."—Reuter.

ALBANIA'S OBJECTION
Geneva: The League Assembly held another plenary meeting yesterday at which it was decided that the Assembly will adjourn and not dissolve so that it may be called upon at short notice in case of an emergency, especially since the majority of the members are remaining here to take part in the deliberations of the Co-ordinating Committee.

The sitting was attended by Baron Aloisi, the Italian delegate, who later in the afternoon left for Rome.

The session opened with a short address by the Albanian delegate, who, somewhat belatedly, expressed the desire to make a statement.

He declared that Albania was in salute as she passed. The Olympic was the largest British-League, but, owing to her close political and economical relations with Italy, she regretted that she

Law Versus War

A GREAT number of people are puzzled why so much trouble is being taken to reconstitute the League of Nations, which had frequently failed and had come to be considered defunct. They consider themselves to be practical men, and all the talk about substituting International Law for the crude arbitrament of war to be vague and useless idealism. Let it be said at once that at first sight they have everything on their side. But there is another side to the question.

The first consideration is the absolute waste and ruination of war with modern weapons. Science has got out of hand. War has now become so gigantic and costly a thing that we are face to face with not the possibility, but the certainty, of the end of civilisation unless man once more gets control of his instruments.

War has been completely industrialised. Discover the resources of any two combatants, and provided they have even approximately equal courage the result is certain. In the battle of Manila, in which the Spanish fleet was sunk, there were no casualties on the American side, because the American guns had longer range. On land the certainty of calculation was not so complete for a long time, because those big guns were hard to transport, and the target was not so obvious. Now, with all the modernities cast on one side since the introduction, in defiance of what was called "International Law," of poison gas at the second battle of Ypres, the world has to face the fact that nations no longer fight with any "Queensberry Rules" about hitting below the belt. Red Cross Conventions and Hague Conventions are nothing but a trap. They lead nations to neglect proper preparation for the agonies that they will have to undergo nonetheless because they have shut their eyes to the possibility.

The other main point is that war is now no longer a fight between trained men who have chosen arms as their career. The hardest punches will be delivered, now that man has conquered the air, against the centres of population, without regard to sex or age or willingness to fight. And there is no protection from such attack.

The only alternative is the substitution of a system of International Law which will allow of quarrels between nations to be argued and decided in accordance with fixed and recognised principles, or take the consequences. Having reached this stage of the argument the "practical" man will say "if a nation wants to fight it will fight, and defy the law." The League has failed in the past years because the Governments that wanted to preserve peace merely gave their advice or decision or condemnation, and then sat down meekly to accept defiance; and the first incident of that sort was the Duce's bombardment of Corfu in order to extract an indemnity from Greece. From that time forward the conviction has been growing that if men go mad and decide to have war for its own sake, the only check is to let them have it, but that it should be a war of all the nations against the disturber of the peace. There are many other forms of pressure that may fall short of war; but it became clear that they might lead to war in the long run. That anticipation paralysed Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Sir John Simon, who were both sincere lovers of peace, but shrank from the logical conclusion. The accession to the Premiership of Mr. Baldwin, who was backed by a unanimous Cabinet, caused the action of Mr. Eden and Sir Samuel Hoare to have altogether a different effect from their "juridical dispatches"—as Hitler called them. And as soon as it was known that if the worst came to the worst England was ready to follow the whole of the obligations undertaken when the Covenant was signed, the other countries accepted the cue and came on to the stage to play the part of co-operators.

Our "practical" friends fail to consider that every new performer has to "play himself in"; and defects that cause needless delay can be remedied once a thing gets to work. They also forget that the conquest of Ethiopia would mean continuous occupation and administration, which implies that time, though important, is not a fatal defect in the plans of those who are not prepared to condone a breach of treaty obligations.

MR. A. O. BRAWN

This is the sixty-third of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyu, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Alan Oerton Brawn, Inspector of English Schools, who has spent nearly 26 years in the service of the Colony.

Born on March 23, 1878, in Staffordshire, England, Mr. Brawn received his education at Queen Mary's Grammar School and the Chelsea Training College for Schoolmasters. Just as some are born great, while others have greatness thrust upon them, some are born teachers, while others become schoolmasters by force of circumstances. Mr. Brawn belongs to the former category; his bent was teaching and has remained so throughout his active life.

Though he came to Hong Kong early in 1901, when life in the Colony was complicated by a visitation of bubonic plague, it was not until 1910 that he entered the service of the Government, when he received his first appointment as an assistant master of the Diocesan Boys' School. Then, after a period as assistant master at Queen's College, he became successively Headmaster of Wantai School, the Victoria British School, the Kowloon British School, the Indian School and Yau-mat School. He was appointed Acting Inspector of English Schools in 1929 and, in addition, Director of the Evening Institute, now known as the Technical Institute, in 1930; and in 1933 he received the substantive appointment of Inspector of English Schools.

Mr. Brawn has had, as he puts it, five dips into military affairs: in 1901 in the Engineer Company of the Hong Kong Volunteers, in 1910 in the Artillery Company, in 1914 in the Infantry Reserve; then, for the last two years of the War, with a Chinese Labour Corps in France and, after his return to Hong Kong in 1919, as Officer Commanding the Cadet Corps.

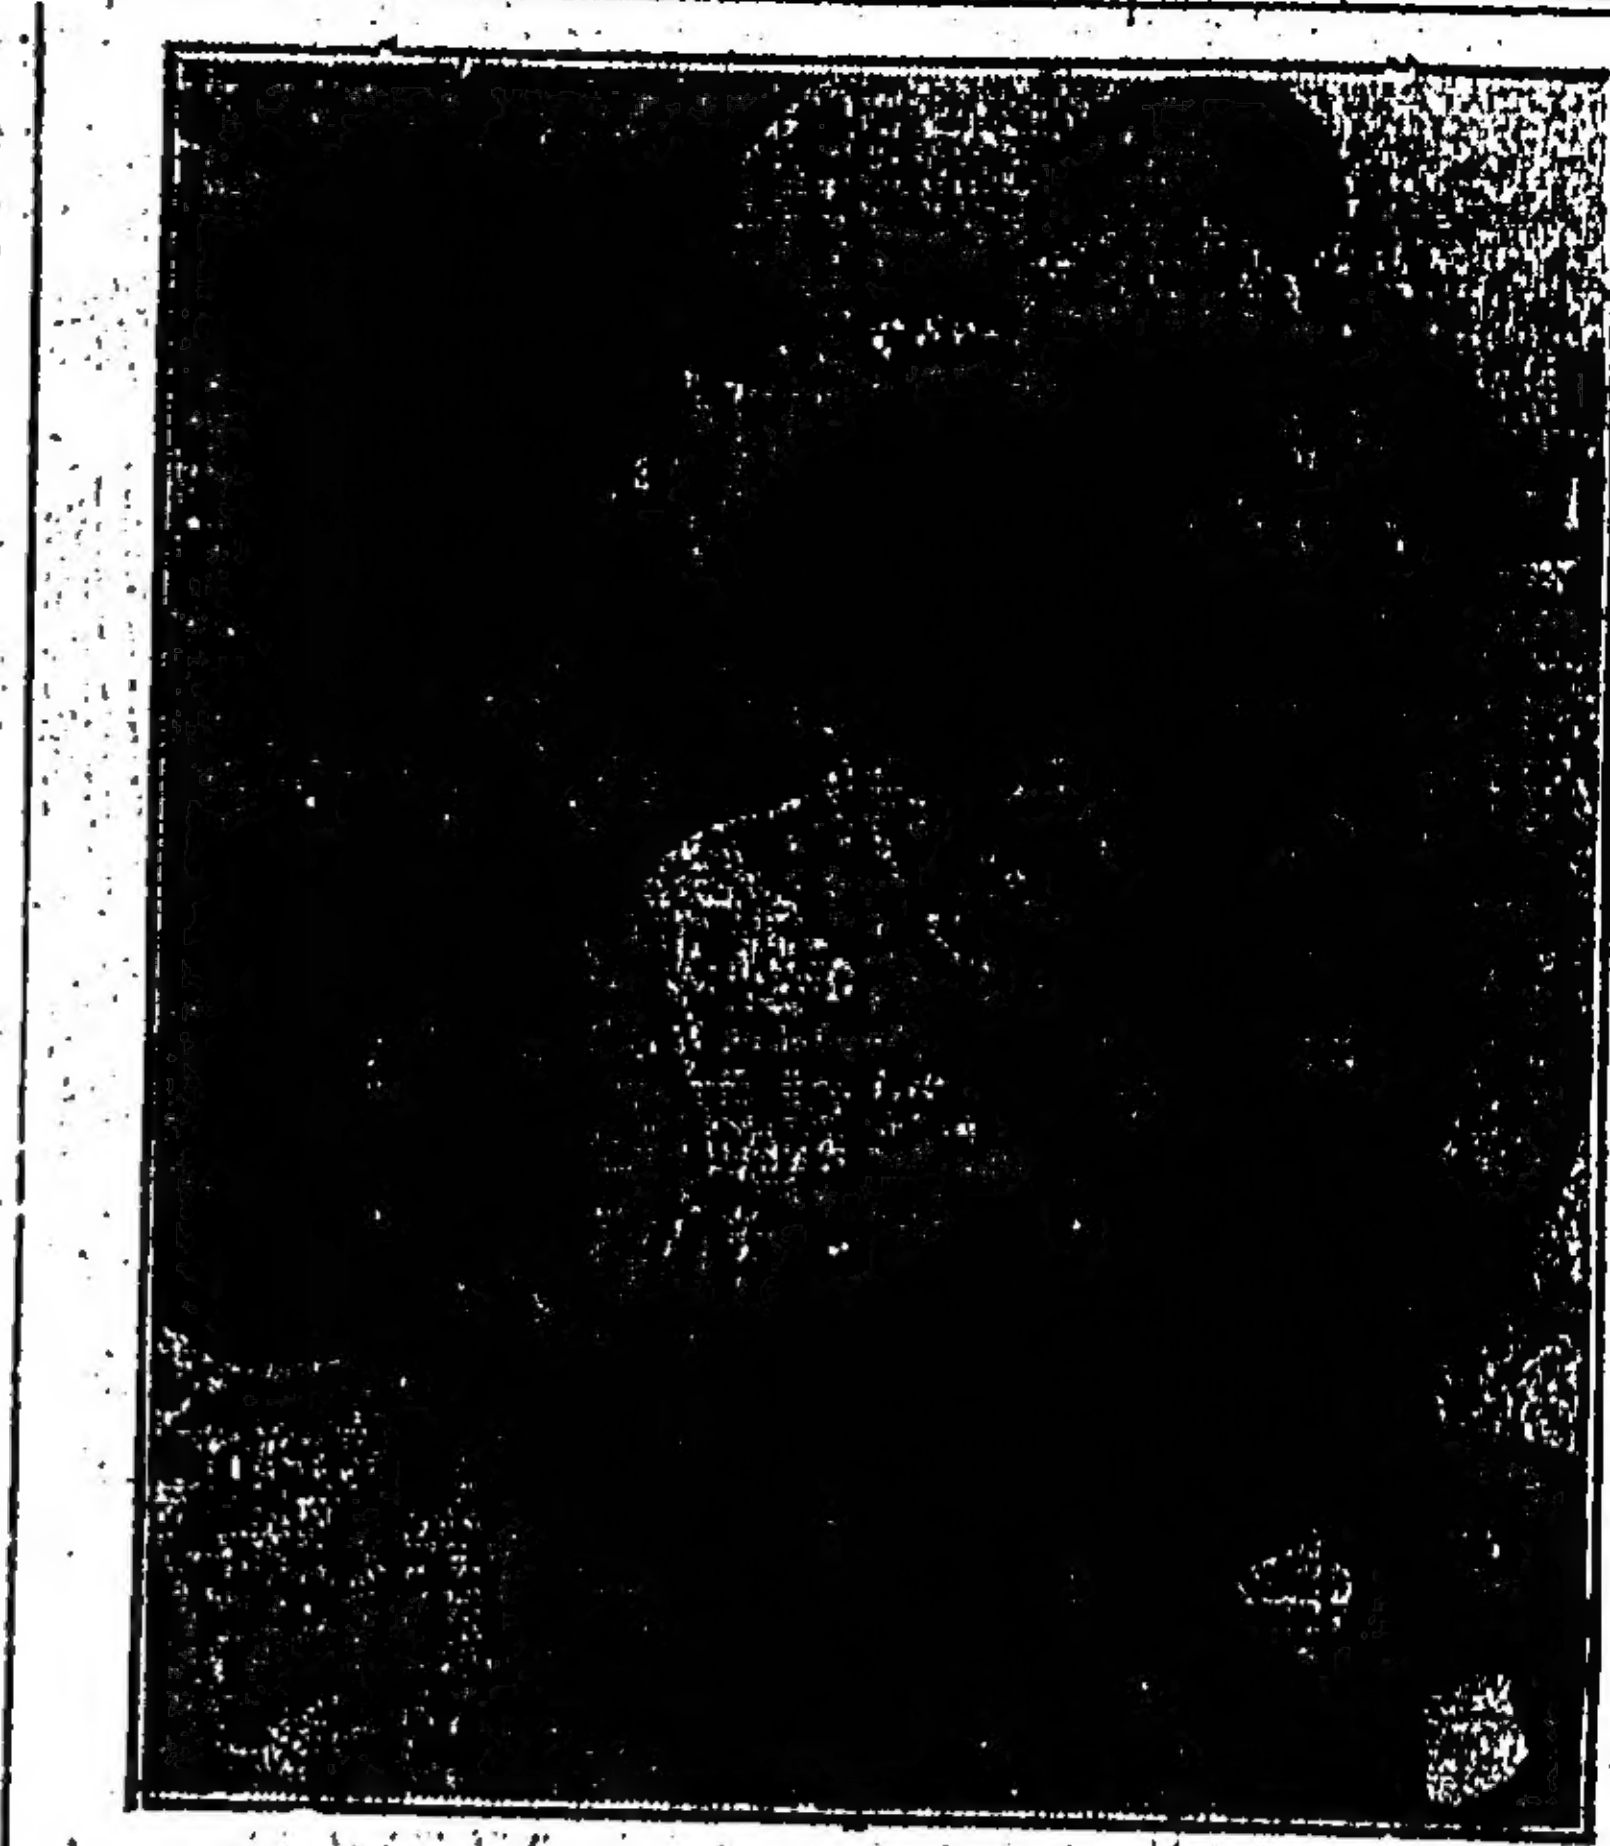

While in France, he recounts, he had some shrapnel through the tail of his shirt—but he was not in it at the time! In addition to his Volunteer Service he was greatly interested in the Scout movement and was the first Treasurer of the Boy Scouts' Association.

Military Affairs

Mr. Brawn has played a prominent and active part in the sports of the Colony. He played football in the early years of this century, when J. W. C. Bonnar was Captain of the Football Club. He also played cricket at various times with the Hong Kong Cricket Club, the Craigengower, Kowloon and Civil Service Clubs and had some voice in the formation of the Cricket League in 1903. He was the founder, in 1909, of the Tennis League, which celebrated its Jubilee last year.

Other Recreations

With regard to other recreations, Mr. Brawn has played what he describes as a peculiar brand of golf for the past 25 years and once won the Captain's Cup at Fanling. He has also played Lawn Bowls for the last 16 years, being twice President of the Association and Captain of the team which won all the Interport matches at Shanghai in 1932. He was formerly Vice-President of the Kowloon Cricket Club and is now Chairman of the Civil Service Cricket Club. Finally, he is a Bridge addict, but declares he has no use for Ely Culbertson's system.

Colonel Fulgencio Batista, military leader of Cuba, is here shown with his wife, and their two-year-old son, Fulgencio, Jr. Our picture was made after Mrs. Batista joined the new women's army of Cuba which has been organised under Colonel Batista's direction.

*Do Your Nerves Stay Up
when you go to bed?*

WHEN restless nerves will not let you sleep—when you start at every noise, and the small worries of the day are unduly magnified—it is a sure sign that your nerves are undernourished. Your daily dietary is not providing sufficient nerve restoring nutriment.

What you need is 'Ovaltine.' This delicious beverage is supremely rich in the nutriment required to feed and restore the nerves. Taken at bedtime its soothing influence quickly induces deep, untroubled sleep.

Avoid haphazard mixtures of cocoa and chocolate which claim to be just as good—there is nothing just as good as 'Ovaltine.'

ROMANCE often glows behind the drabest exterior. The most uninteresting tasks in the world may sometimes result in a rich yield.

Not long ago, a workman in a slate quarry in North Wales found himself without a frying pan when he wanted to cook his ham-and-egg dinner. So he used a piece of waste slate instead. The piece of slate expanded with the heat and the man showed it to his employer, who, after experimenting with it, discovered that the slate treated in such a manner made an excellent light concrete when mixed with cement.

The result is that a new industry has been started owing to this accidental discovery and scores of unemployed men are being absorbed.

Another valuable discovery was made some time ago owing to the mistake of a left-handed negro. This man was using a right-handed axe while slashing pine trees for turpentine. The result was that he got a slightly different slash than if a left-handed axe had been used. A scientist happened to be visiting the forest, and calculated that this slash gave a greater yield of turpentine, and although the mistake was made only a short while ago, more than £200,000 has already been added to the industry.

Blotting-Paper

BLOTTING-PAPER, although not a vital invention, has done a great deal to facilitate writing-comfort, and certainly would be missed. That it came into being was the result of a mistake on the part of a careless workman in a paper mill in Berkshire.

He forgot to put in the sizing material and an entire batch of paper was spoiled. The proprietor, however, decided to keep this for writing rough notes, but when he went to scribble a message, the ink spread all over the surface.

It struck him then, that this would do for drying instead of sand, and he advertised his waste paper as "blotting." It sold in record time, so he made some more, that, too, vanished, and ultimately the mill ceased making paper and turned its activities to "blotting."

Main Finder

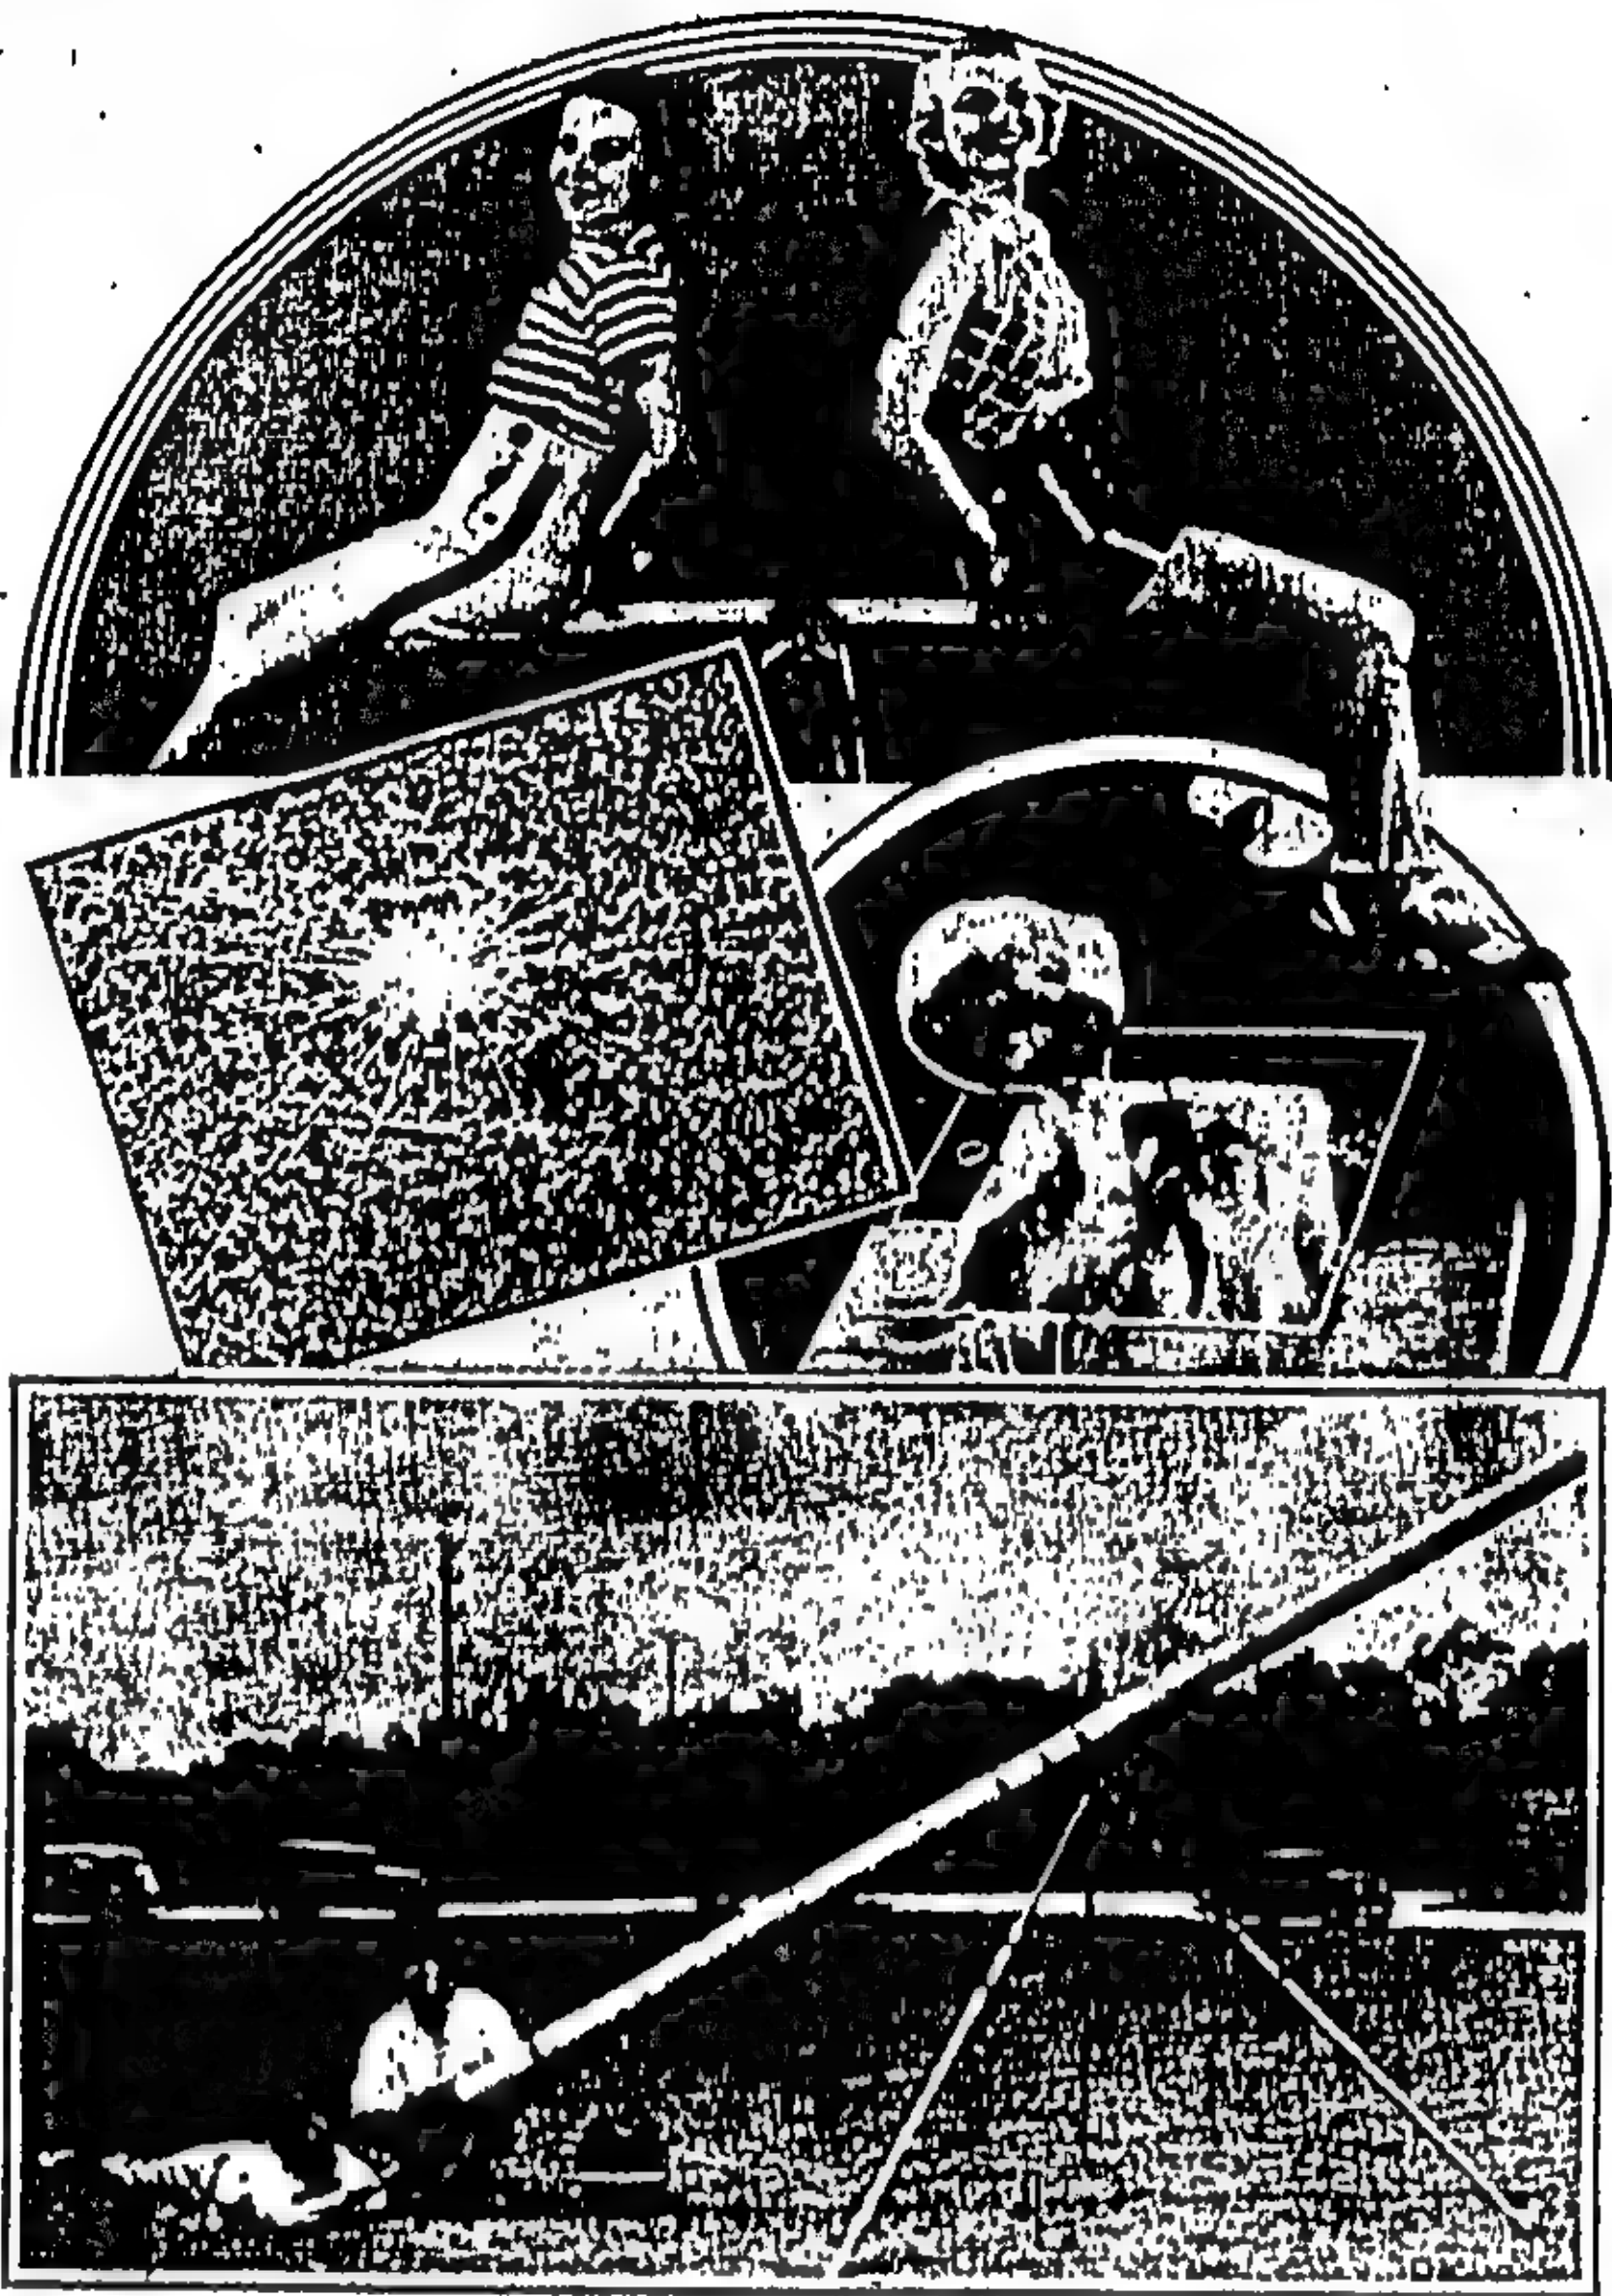

THE Sharman Main Finder, a delicate piece of apparatus almost indispensable in certain branches of engineering work, was also an accidental invention. Before Marconi invented wireless, two enthusiasts, A. W. Sharman and T. W. Bolsham, were trying to send messages to each other, through the earth, on Wandsworth Common. The results were so good that they suspected something to be wrong, and upon searching, discovered that their wires were earthed to common water-pipes.

Years after this gave Mr. Sharman the clue to the invention that made him famous and wealthy.

Everlasting Match

R. Ferdinand Ringer, an Austrian chemist, has invented an everlasting match. But it is unlikely to be used for many years.

Millions Lost . . .

(Top)—Tempered glass supports the weight of two girls. (Left, centre) Under severe strain it crumbles. (Right) It is impervious to ice or molten metal. (Bottom) This tubular camera spots aircraft miles away. The lens and photographic plate are in a 15-ft. tube, which replaces the ordinary bellows.

An accident led to its invention. Six years ago he was in conference in Paris with an important business man who offered him a cigarette. Dr. Ringer struck a match. The head flew off and, falling on to his associate's cheek, burnt it. This started him off on research work to find a remedy and to invent a match which burnt without smoke or odour.

In the end he evolved a match which could be lighted 2,000 times, but Ivar Kreuger, the Match King, who came to such a tragic end, offered him £1,000,000 to suppress it.

There are still vast fortunes to be made by simple inventions; in fact, it is the simple inventions that coin money.

Another Brainwave

THE man who invented the movable top to the collar stud drew £5,000 a year in royalties for the rest of his life. Mr. Ellis Carr, who first thought of the idea of baking biscuits, left over £1,000,000. An excellent dividend from a single idea.

Another "single-idea" genius was H. L. Lipman, of Philadelphia. He made a mistake one day in his accounts, and was so annoyed when he could not lay his hands on a rubber that he decided to fix one permanently to his pencil. This little brain-wave, the result of an accident, made him so rich that he never needed to use a pencil again, nor a rubber.

Riches From Temper

Mr. Heatin became rich through losing his temper. Most men get the sack for that—or end up in the divorce court. Every morning while dressing, his wife nagged him. Mr. Heatin was hot-headed, and during his morning lecture always tugged at his boot-laces, thus wearing the lace holes through rapidly. One day he tore the tops of his boots, broke his laces and was late for work. They sacked him—but he invented a metal eyelet for laces, and this made him almost a millionaire.

Accident, too, made John Blakey, the inventor of metal tips for boots, a man of leisure. Walking over the moors one day, a piece of metal stuck in the sole of his boot, and when the time arrived for re-sooling, he noticed that that portion did not need repair. The idea was born; he made his own metal tips and peddled them from door to door. Ultimately he died, leaving £290,000.

Opportunities were never greater than they are to-day. What would not housewives give for an efficient plate-washing machine or an automatic device for sewing on buttons?

Almost in Confidence

Mrs. Fraser Back From America

A WELCOME homecomer last week was Mrs. D. J. Fraser, who returned last Friday from a summer holiday spent in America. The members of the Women's International Club will be specially happy to see her back as Mrs. Fraser is a member of the committee and a keen worker who has contributed much to the success of the Club. She will be taking over a day in charge of the tiffin almost at once, as Mrs. Peter Tod will have to give up her work on Fridays. Mrs. Tod is making her final preparations for her trip to England early next month. In Mrs. Tod the Club will be losing one of its most enthusiastic helpers.

Rainy Holiday

CAPT. and Mrs. O. P. Joce have had a trip to Japan where they were drawn by the memory of an earlier and very pleasant trip. They had bad luck this time, however, as it rained all the time they were there. Mrs. Joce, who for the past year has been the very efficient secretary of the Hong Kong Art Club, is handing over her office at the end of the year, as she is leaving the Colony.

"Lady Precious Stream"

THERE has been lot of discussion lately in the press and in amateur theatrical circles, as to whether the production of "Lady Precious Stream" should be attempted in Hong Kong or not. The general feeling was that it would be futile for European amateurs to try to interpret the spirit of a Chinese play and that it would be better for them to stick to their usual type of production. Now it appears that after all we are going to see a local presentation of the play in the English translation, with a Chinese cast. Mr. Birch, who will produce this year's University play, has selected "Lady Precious Stream". I hear that Mrs. Elsie Soong, who was the producer of the recent successful fashion shows, will also collaborate. She played an important part in the Shanghai production of the play. After the preliminary battle, I am looking forward to seeing what effect the production will have on the local intelligentsia.

Boy Scout Concert

THERE will be a Boy Scout concert at the Fleet Club Theatre next Wednesday and I hear that Mr. Li Chor-chi, the popular local tenor, will also sing. I am sure that a lot of people will turn up as a result, as his singing is always a great attraction.

Jubilee Blue At Repulse

ONCE again there was a large gathering at the Repulse Bay Hotel dinner dance last Saturday. Never let it be said that Hong Kong is not up to the latest trend in fashions, for lovely gowns of stylish cut and shade were to be seen on all sides. Jubilee blue lace contrasted with black georgette; gay and daring flowered silk vaunted itself beside the demure shades of pink and cream; and in all the dance floor was a fair sight for the seeing eye!

Miss Elsie Lammert was there, looking very attractive in a long and graceful green gown. Miss Eve O'Hagan wore a crepe frock of delicate pink which suited her colouring very well. Miss H. de V. Beauclerc, Mrs. H. M. Fordham, Mrs. J. Smalley, and Mrs. Moodie Meddle were among those who favoured the over popular black; Miss W. Morris wore Jubilee blue, while Miss K. Moir and Miss S. Rossi each favoured a cream shade.

Hong Kong Art Club

THE annual exhibition of the Hong Kong Art Club at the Gloucester Hotel will be held earlier this year than usual. The dates the committee has decided upon are November 16 to 20. Although one or two of the most active members of the Club have left during the year, there are many newcomers, so it will be interesting to see their debut efforts.

About TOWN

Local Film Industry

"T'S an ill wind, etc." The Canton quarrel with the American film companies, though it has deprived South China of many fine pictures—and possibly many poor ones—has brought prosperity to the Chinese producing companies operating in Hong Kong, all of which are working overtime.

The Tin Studios at Kowloon City are in the midst of the production of a picture, the title of which is not yet fixed, with Mrs. Sit Kok-sin as the star; the New Moon Film Company has just finished "A Modern Bride," which is to be shown shortly at the World Theatre; the Lee Garden Studio has just produced an admirable Chinese comedy, under the direction of Mr. Chester Bennett, that has played to packed houses since its release, and is now engaged on another; lastly, the United Photoplay Service, of which Sir Robert Ho Tung is President, has rushed through a series of successful pictures and is still engaged in production.

R.S.P.C.C.

If you should walk down a little side-street off Leicester Square in London—I believe it is called Leicester Street—your attention will undoubtedly be caught by a display in a plate-glass window of some of the ghastliest exhibits it is possible to conceive. They consist of lumps of iron, bits of chain, leather thongs and such things, which have only one quality in common—that they were all used by various people at various times for the purpose of inflicting fiendish punishments upon children. If you can leave that window without experiencing a feeling of almost physical nausea, then you're a better man than I am, Gunga Din. Of those who pass many place some sort of donation in the collecting box flanking it, as a thank-offering for the splendid and unceasing work done by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The stars and staff of the "Modern Bride," the film now showing at the World Theatre. The Grandview and New Moon Film Company produced the picture.

There are two organisations in Hong Kong who make it their particular duty to look after the welfare of children, the Hong Kong Society for the Protection of Children and the Mui Tsai Society. While it is possible for a child to be produced in Court, suffering apparently from bites, burns and severe caning, the work, individual and collective, of these two societies will still be necessary, and they will be open to receive contributions towards it. Let us hope that Hong Kong need never stage such an exhibition as that still to be seen in civilised England.

Local Place-Names.

I DO not know who writes the "From a Hong Kong Armchair" notes in The Rock, but they make most interesting reading and always indicate a cultured and sensitive mind. One of the points raised in the October issue was the drab place-names which we seem to favour locally. Des Voeux Rd., Pedder St., Stubbs Rd., Battery Path, Gage St., Bonham, Gough, Pottinger, Jervois, were some of them specially named—"names for the most part as ugly as the streets they label."

The comment is apt. Posterity has apparently only one way to honour the memory of a local administrator, and that is by making his name a cognomen for the first new street created after his retirement. The habit may be just, but it is seldom picturesque and might well be abandoned, except in the case of some outstanding contribution of service to local civic needs. In many cases the deeds of those so honoured are forgotten, and in fact hardly ever deserved immortality in any case. And Crippen Avenue would be the last straw.

THE European Police hockey team will play the Royal Corps of Signals in their first Mamak encounter on the Police Training School ground next Tuesday.

There have been a few changes in the Police team. Jessop, the Police custodian, will not be playing, and Hutchinson will take Moss's place at inside-right.

A friendly hockey match has been arranged between the Police "B" team and the Punjabis for next Wednesday on the former's ground at 4.30 p.m.

Costa Finds His Position

No Y.M.C.A. Badminton Teams?

I understand that the European Y.M.C.A. are not contemplating entering a team either in the Men's or Ladies' Sections of the Badminton League this season as they have not been granted sufficient time within which to practice in.

His present injury is an old one and it was because of it that he took to playing at back, in which position he has done very well.

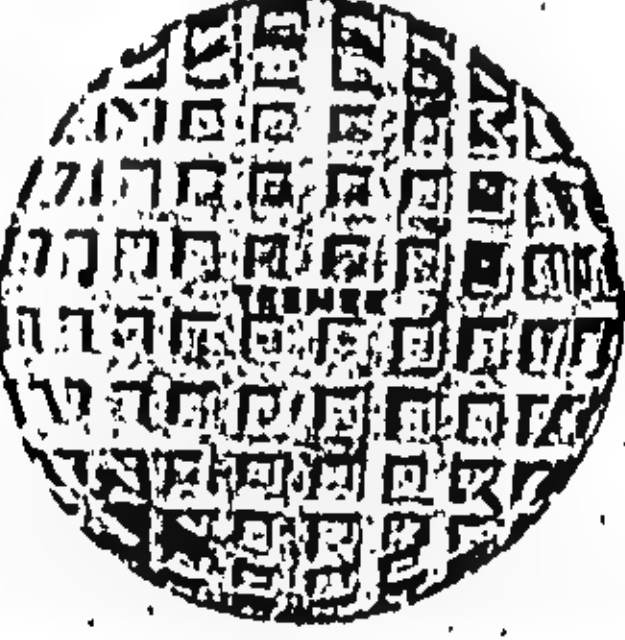

Rocha is also a fairly good hockey player and has represented the Radio Sports Club in the Mamak Hockey Tournament.

Late Bowls Matches

Although the bowls season will be virtually closed after the Altkenhead Shield games, several other matches are still to be played. The Sutton Cup games, the Clark-Sullivan Cup, and the match in which local Yorkshire bowlers take a leading part, are only a few.

R.E.O.C.A. HOLD FIRST ANNUAL DINNER IN H.K.

Large Crowd Attends Function
CONVIVIAL EVENING

The Royal Engineers' Old Comrades Association, which was reconstituted, after a lapse of four years, about four months ago, held their first annual dinner at the Roof Garden of the Hong Kong Hotel last night when 214 guests were present, including serving officers and other ranks of the Corps of Royal Engineers, ex-Royal Engineers and members of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps.

Lieut.-Col. H. M. Fordham, C.B.E., presided in the unavoidable absence of Col. E. St. G. Kirke, D.S.O., the Chief Engineer and President of the Association, and was supported by Major B. E. C. Dixon, M.C. D.S.O., Chairman of the Association and the Association and others.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT
Among those present were: Lt. Col. H. M. Fordham, C.B.E., Lt. Col. M. H. Logan, Major R. L. Withington, M.C., Major D. H. Steers, O.B.E., Major C. M. Mannors, O.B.E., Major B. E. C. Dixon, M.C., Major M. A. Johnson, M.C., Major B. B. Edwards, M.C., Capt. D. M. Eloy, M.C., Capt. N. Syddall, M.C., Capt. Foley, M.C., Capt. R. R. Gillespie, M.C., Capt. G. Thomas, M.C., Capt. J. D. Newman, M.C., Lieut. W. B. Cooper, M.C., Lieut. J. D. Hamilton, M.C., Lieut. J. D. Patullo, M.C., Lieut. A. W. Lorena, M.C., Lieut. C. D. S. Robertson, M.C., Lieut. G. P. Shearer, M.C., and Lieut. R. de V. Winkfield, M.C.

During the dinner and in between speeches, the following artistes rendered an excellent programme of variety items: Lieut. A. W. Lorena, M.C., Staff Sergeant J. Jordan, M.C., C. S. M. S. McNeill, East Lancs Regt., Lieut. C. de S. Robertson, M.C., M.C., Mr. A. Simpson and Mr. H. J. Best. This was followed by community singing.

The chair was taken by the Vice-President of the Association, Lt.-Col. H. M. Fordham, M.C., R.E., in the unavoidable absence of the President, Col. E. St. G. Kirke, D.S.O.

CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH
After the usual loyal toast had been honoured, the Chairman expressed regret that the President was unable to be present and proceeded as follows:

"The Hong Kong branch was reconstituted on May 30, 1935, when a general meeting was held, 36 members being present. The Chief Engineer presided at the meeting and was elected President; the C.B.E., Vice-President; O. C. Fortnes, R.E., Chairman; Q. M. S. Staples, R.E., Hon. Secretary and Sgt. H. W. Betts, R.E. Treasurer.

A Committee was also formed. "Since that date the numbers of members have grown rapidly, and the present strength of the Branch is well over 200. This result, after a little over four months is, I think you will agree, very pleasing. The strength of the civilian membership is 29, which is a little disappointing, in view of the number of ex-R.E.s in the Colony. It is hoped that more will join.

"Some say that it is no use joining, as the branch has been frequently reconstituted and then has ceased to exist, owing to lack of keenness of the R.E. in the Garrison at the time. I suggest that the answer to this is more active support from members living in Hong Kong. They are the residents. We are only birds of passage and we must rely on the 'Old Soldiers'.

"We have started an employment agency. Some 50 firms have been circulated, informing them of the re-opening of the branch, and asking them to apply to this Association if there is a vacancy on their staff. Many firms, we found, were prepared to do so. A register of members wishing for employment in Hong Kong has been opened. There are about a dozen names of those now serving on the register, and everything possible will be done to find them suitable employment. I am credibly informed there are no ex-R.E. unemployed in this Colony.

THE SOCIAL SIDE
On the social side we have not

LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE

GRAVE SITUATION IN U.S.

NEW YORK SHIPPING MAY BE PARALYSED

Houston, Texas, Yesterday. The eleven-day-old strike of longshoremen at the ports of Alabama and Florida is spreading further along the east coast, 8,000 longshoremen, mainly from ports in Texas, joining the strike yesterday, according to the International Longshoremen's Association of New York, the officials of which declare that within 10 days New York shipping will be paralysed unless a satisfactory settlement is reached.

The strike, which at present covers all the gulf ports of Texas, originated in New Orleans on a question of wages and recognition of the dockers' unions.—Reuter.

been idle. Open-air whist drives have been held fortnightly throughout the summer and will continue under cover during the winter. As many as 32 tables have been filled in one night, and these functions are considered to be most popular. They have necessitated much work and organisation and our Entertainment Committee under S. M. J. Holland, R.E. are to be congratulated on their success. Each whist drive has brought in about $10 to the branch funds. R. E. Sunday, this dinner and other expenses will bite deeply into these funds, so I must ask for your continued support.

"Dances are going to be arranged throughout the winter, commencing in the near future. It is hoped that all members will do their utmost to come along and bring all their friends.

TRIBUTE TO OFFICIALS
At dinner to-night there are present, over 200 members and their friends. The dinner and arrangements I am sure you will agree have been excellent, and I congratulate Mr. Luckin and his committee on their efforts. I wish to thank them on behalf of you all for the work they have had to do in organising a function like this. I understand that friends of members are going to entertain us later. I should like to take this opportunity of thanking them for coming here to do so.

"The flourishing condition of the branch is largely due to the hard work of our Chairman, Major Dixon, the Secretary, Q. M. S. Staples, the Treasurer, Sgt. Betts, and Sapper Woolgar. They have given up much of their time to do the work, and I would like to thank them on your behalf for all they have done.

RESTORATION OF MONARCHY IN GREECE

King George's Return After Plebiscite

"FATHER AND PROTECTOR OF ALL GREEKS"

Athens, Yesterday. Ex-King George of Greece has been officially informed that the throne has been restored to him. The King is expected to return to Greece in November, after the plebiscite.

The Kondylis Government has issued a proclamation to the people expressing the desire that King George should be the father and protector of all Greeks and the imperial arbiter between political parties.—Reuter.

GOVT. PROCLAMATION

Athens: The new Government has issued a proclamation to the whole Greek population pointing out that the National Assembly has declared its confidence in the new Government, which regards its chief task as the organisation and conduct of a plebiscite on the return of King George II, which is stated to be an imperative necessity for the re-establishment of political order throughout the land.

The restoration of the monarchy, continues the report, will mean the beginning of a long, normal political life, which will assure to every Greek, irrespective of party, participation in the business of government.

King George II will be the protector and impartial arbiter for all Greeks.

The second task of the new Government will be to work out and promulgate laws for the restoration of the country's economic soundness and prosperity. Among these will be reform of administration, education, public health, criminal and civil legislation, equitable distribution of taxation, complete re-organisation of the army, navy and air force, the application of a social policy to assure work for all Greeks, and finally, the agrarian problem.

CONFIDENCE ASKED

The proclamation closes with the words: "that which the Government demands from the people is confidence and a little time in order to lay the foundation of a better future."

The proclamation bears the signature of Premier Kondylis and all the other Ministers.—Trans-Ocean Service.

JUDGE'S WARNING TO BLACKMAILERS

Severely Dealt With If Convicted

NO LENIENCY LIKELY

London. Warning to blackmailers was given by Mr. Justice Swift in the Court of Criminal Appeal recently.

He refused an application for leave to appeal made by Edwin Foreman, who received at the Winchester Assizes a sentence of 18 months' hard labour for demanding with menaces money from a woman.

On Impulse
Foreman says that this is his first offence and that he thought he would be bound over, said Mr. Justice Swift. "He claims that he acted on the impulse of the moment, although in his demands he made it plain that he did not intend to be satisfied with one payment."

"Blackmailers had better understand that if they are caught they will be severely dealt with whether it is their first offence or not."

Foreman's sentence, if anything, errs on the side of leniency.

CONSOLIDATION ON NORTHERN FRONT

OFFENSIVE STATIONARY ON SOMALI FRONT

REPORTED CAPTURE OF UAL UAL

Rome, Yesterday. The news of the desertion of two Abyssinian chieftains has been received with great satisfaction in Rome and is regarded as the first-fruit of the Italian policy to win over sections of the population to the Italian side as the Italian advance proceeds. The streams of desertion to the Italians are expected to increase.

Simultaneously with the military operations political officers will begin to try to persuade the Abyssinians of the advantage of Italian rule.

News from East Africa indicates that the Italian troops are consolidating their lines of communications on the northern front, where another advance will not be made for a fortnight.

The offensive appears to be stationary on the Somali front, where the Italians are on the defensive, while there is no news from the southern Eritrean front, where the Italian column which occupied Mount Moussa Ali is proceeding in the direction of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa Railway.

ALARMING REPORT
Asmara: It is officially announced that the powerful chieftain Halle Selassie Guza, ruler of Makale in the region of Eritrea, has deserted to Italy with 12,000 men and 12,000 rifles and 100 machine-guns.

Ras Seyoum has reappeared to the East of Adowa and is reported to be heading a considerable force of Abyssinian irregulars and menacing the Italian line of communications.

PLANE SHOT DOWN
Addis Ababa: It is officially announced that the Issa tribesmen report the shooting down of an Italian aeroplane near Deldorra. The crew were shot.

It is reported from Deridawa that the Abyssinians have captured Ual Ual and Wardair.

CONSUL DENIED AUDIENCE
Addis Ababa: The Emperor has refused to receive the Italian Consul, Signor Vincini, who had requested an audience before leaving the country.—Reuter.

HEAVY FIGHTING
Addis Ababa: The reported vigorous Abyssinian counter-offensive against Adowa appears to have developed into a violent battle for the possession of the other positions along the northern front now occupied by the Italians, and was accompanied by heavy losses on both sides.

UNIVERSITY UNION DANCE

Annual Function Huge Success

The first annual dance organised by the H.K. University Union was held in the main hall of the University last night, and was voted a great success by all who attended.

Sir William Hornell, Vice-Chancellor of the University, graced the function with his presence, while Miss Mary Smith, the daughter of His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, also attended.

Dancing continued until a late hour to the strains of the Hong Kong Hotel band. Among those present were the Hon. Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Kotewall, Major and Mrs. Thoyles, Mr. J. Barrow, Professor and Mrs. Digby, Professor and Mrs. Roffey, Professor Brown, Professor Robertson, Mr. E. H. Ong, Mr. Z. D. Lee, the Secretary of the Union, and many members of the Faculty and their friends.

WORK FOR TEN YEARS

Expansion Of Seaside Town

Work which is expected to go on for ten years will begin almost immediately on plans to make Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex, an industrial centre.

New factories, new wharves, new railway sidings, and eight thousand new houses will be built.

Important improvements are to be made to the harbour, where dredging work will permit large coasting vessels to enter.

A private syndicate formed in London has purchased more than 1,250 acres of land in Shoreham.

Employment will be found almost at once for at least 1,000 men.

It is their first offence or not.

CANADA'S FOREIGN TRADE

Present Year Shows 7 Per Cent. Rise

A gain of more than seven per cent. was noted in Canada's trade with foreign countries during the twelve months ended July, compared with a similar period last year.

Total trade amounted to about $700,000,000, consisting of imports worth $385,000,000 and exports worth $315,000,000.

A notable factor was the increased trade between Canada and the Far East. During the period under review, Canada's imports from China increased by 47 per cent. and those from Japan increased by 33 per cent.

ROYAL AIR FORCE EXPANSION

Excellent Progress
Of Programme

DUE FOR COMPLETION IN MARCH 1937

London, Yesterday. Excellent progress is being made with the programme of expansion of the Royal Air Force announced last May. Already sites have been definitely chosen for 20 out of the 32 new stations required and measures are in train to make them ready for service by March 1937, when the programme is due to be completed.

The sites of three out of six new armament training camps have been selected and five additional flying training schools have been formed. The enrolment of pilots and recruiting generally are regarded as satisfactory.

Manufacturers are making a big effort to execute contracts for new machines and in some cases arrangements have been made for other firms to build, under license, special types, manufacturers of which cannot immediately expand their plant sufficiently to enable them to provide the required output themselves. — British Wireless Service.

NEW COMMISSIONER OF METROPOLITAN POLICE

London, Yesterday. — The new Commissioner of Metropolitan Police, Air Vice-Marshal Sir Philip Game, who was Governor of New South Wales between 1930 and the present year, will take over his new duties from the present Commissioner, Lord Trenchard, on November 12. — British Wireless Service.

Many rumours are current that Ras Seyoum's troops have taken a great number of prisoners and captured a large quantity of war material.

Other reports speak of a heavy Italian artillery and air bombardment on the Abyssinian positions preparatory to making a renewed infantry assault.

Confirmation of these messages, however, is difficult, since the telephone between Addis Ababa and Adowa is not in operation.

PLANE BROUGHT DOWN
From Warran, which is situated north of Harar, in the Province of Issa, comes a report that one of the two Italian planes which flew over the vicinity has been brought down by rifle fire; both the pilot and the observer and a little dog which they had as a mascot being killed.

On the southern front in the Province of Ogaden the Italians appear to be making preparations for a big attack, according to a despatch from the Commander of the Abyssinian southern army, who reports a great concentration of tanks, artillery and planes in the valley sector.

Hitherto, no large scale action has taken place on the southern front owing to the Abyssinian policy of avoiding coming to close grips with the enemy, whose advance is being hampered by guerrilla warfare tactics.

About 20,000 volunteers from the Wollame regions have arrived here with their wives and baggage in order to offer their services to the Emperor and are now in camp before the capital awaiting instructions.

ITALIANS LEAVE CAPITAL
The Foreign Minister handed

the Italian Minister a note on Thursday withdrawing the diplomatic agreement which expired at 7 o'clock this morning.

Count Vincini protested in writing against the allegation that the Legation's radio transmitter had been used since the opening of hostilities and agreed to the entire Legation Staff, leaving the capital this morning.

He himself declined to depart until the Consular agents from Magalio had arrived.

This request to remain in the capital until the arrival of the Consul was, however, declined by the Negus, who is also expected to refuse the application for an audience which the Minister made.

FINANCIAL DEMANDS
Milan: The financial demands being made by the Abyssinian conflict are again clearly reflected in the returns of the Banca d'Italia dated September 30, which have just been published, showing that since the last return issued gold stock had declined from 4,33 to 4,25 milliards lire, while the foreign currency reserves have shrunk from 417,930,000 to 392,530,000 lire.

Loans against collateral have increased from 2,68 to 3,01 milliards of lire, and notes in circulation exceeded the 15 milliards limit for the first time, having risen since the date of the last report from 14,92 to 15,27 milliards lire.

ITALIAN STRENGTH
Berlin: The strength of the Italian forces who in three columns began the advance on October 3 into Abyssinia is stated to aggregate 110,000 men with 2,300 machine guns, 230 cannon, 22 tanks, and 35,000 horses and mules, according to a report yesterday by a semi-official German news agency's special correspondent at the Italian front in northern Abyssinia.

The report adds that each Italian detachment is accompanied by experts familiar with Abyssinian conditions and whose entrusted task is propagating Italian aims among the native population.

These experts are mostly former askaris who served in the Italian colonial army and subsequently settled in the border districts.

DELEGATE AT FRONT
Addis Ababa: Tired of cooling his heels at Geneva, and burning with ardour to be at the front, the Abyssinian delegate to the League of Nations, who is one of Abyssinia's most capable generals and a graduate of the former Imperial Russian Military Academy at St. Petersburg, has repeatedly requested the Emperor to recall him from Geneva and entrust him with a military command.

It is now announced that the Emperor has complied with the request.

ALLEGED DESERTION
Rome: On Thursday the Abyssinian General, Haile Selassie given being that many in the sec-

AMAZING LOCAL PASSENGER FIGURES

K. C. R. Records Shattered During Double Tenth Holidays

Although it was expected that the "Double Tenth" and the previous day would result in very heavy bookings on the Kowloon-Canton Railway, it nevertheless came as a surprise when the total number of passengers carried during these days was estimated at the imposing figure of 27,082—10,057 more than the former record, which was during the King's Jubilee celebrations on May 4 and May 5, when 16,705 passengers were carried. Of this number 22,008 travelled in the direction of Canton.

Gugsa, who is commanding the eastern section in the Tigre region, on the northern front, went over to the Italian side with several thousand troops, according to an Italian report from the front, issued yesterday from the Propaganda Ministry. Gugsa is known to be a personal enemy of Ras Seyoum, the Commander-in-Chief of the northern army.

Gugsa's action, continues the report, was shortly afterwards followed by Ras Kassa Araya with his men.

The list of casualties published for the first four days of the fighting gives the number of dead at 30, of which five are Italians, 70 wounded, 20 being Italians, and 33 native soldiers missing.

One field gun, one machine gun, 134 rifles and 30 ammunition containers have been captured from the enemy, but the report, however, makes no mention of prisoners.

No military action has been reported for the two days which have elapsed since the last report, it being merely stated that various vanguard skirmishes have occurred, that communications have been consolidated, and that the construction of roads continues and that the water supply problem has been overcome.

On the southern front, states the report, numerous desertions of Abyssinian troops to the Italian colours have taken place, asserting on the other hand that the reports by the foreign press of the desertion of Italian native troops are untrue.

It is also untrue, it is added, that an Italian aeroplane was brought down near Aksum. Within the next few days, the report concludes, the Italian headquarters will be transferred to occupied territory. — Trans-Ocean Service.

ADOWA SKIRMISHES
Geneva: It is reported that the Italian right wing, under General Maravigna, is holding the heights and valleys around Adowa. Skirmishing is taking place on all the fronts.

The frontier of Eritrea formed by the Setit-Takkoze river was the scene of repeated attacks by the warlike Abyssinian tribes on the Italian native troops.

From the Italian side exact statements of their own losses are still unobtainable, the reason given being that many in the sec-

SCOUTS' CONCERT

Good Entertainment Promised

HOST OF LOCAL TALENT TO LEND SUPPORT

The Scouts of the 4th Hong Kong (Murray) and 4th Kowloon (Garrison) Troops are making final preparations for what is hoped to be one of the best entertainments of its kind held in the Colony for a long time. Their second annual concert is to be held at the China Fleet Club Theatre next Wednesday, commencing at 8.45 p.m. sharp.

The programme will be a model of variety and from the rise of the curtain there will be no time wasted, as items will necessarily have to follow each other in quick succession to ensure the Committee's keeping to a standard time. Many popular local artists will figure on the programme in addition to the Scouts themselves, as long experience has shown the need for variety that many of our season's concerts so often lack.

By kind permission of the Officer Commanding and Officers of the East Lancashire Regiment the Band, under Bandmaster A. B. Yule, will be in attendance.

The following local artists have promised their support:—Mrs. Anderson Miller, Mr. Li Chor-chi, Mr. P. H. Segon, the Quartette of the East Lancashire Regiment, the pupils of the O'Keefe-Montgomery School of dancing and Mrs. W. Sinclair, Mr. Harvey-Ash, Mr. W. Robertson, Mr. O. B. Kime, Mr. S. McNeill, and the Hawaiian Guitar Trio. Other attractions on the programme will include a gymnastic exhibition, Farmer Giles, a Harried Scouter and the Wandering Minstrel.

The proceeds of the Concert are to be devoted to the funds of the 4th Hong Kong and 4th Kowloon Troops. Tickets at $2 (reserved) and $1 (unreserved) are obtainable either from the Scouts or from the Anderson Music Co.

FLOOD DANGER IN NORTH

Waters Approach The City Of Shuyang

POPULATION PANIC-STRICKEN

Shanghai, Yesterday.

The populace in the district city of Shuyang were in the grip of panic yesterday, with the floodwaters from the Loman Lake, in its neighbourhood, approaching nearer and nearer to the city walls. As an emergency flood prevention measure, the district magistrate there has issued orders to have all the city gates closed and to transport a large quantity of mud from outside the city to strengthen the walls.

Swollen by floodwaters from the continuous rising of the Liutang River, the Chutun River, which flows through that city, has overflowed its banks. The farmers living along the river have gathered to reap their crops, in order to save them from being washed away by the currents. —Central News Agency.

HONG KONG HERIOT CLUB ENTERTAINS

DISTINGUISHED GATHERING

REPRESENTATIVES OF EDINBURGH SCHOOLS AT GLOUCESTER

An interesting function took place at the Gloucester Hotel last night when the members of the Hong Kong Heriot Club entertained representatives of Edinburgh Schools to dinner.

Mr. J. R. Kinghorn, President of the Hong Kong Heriot Club, presided, and welcomed the guests who represented the various seats of learning in Auld Reekie. In the course of his remarks Mr. Kinghorn referred to one of the recent dinners of the Heriot Club, when a suggestion was made that the mutual help and friendship resulting from the Hong Kong Heriot Club dinners was worth sharing with others, and it was arranged that this representative gathering should be the forerunner of an Annual Edinburgh Schools' Dinner.

Unique Honour

"We are especially honoured with the presence of an Edinburgh schoolboy who has risen to high rank, and of whom we are all proud and whose talents have received well-merited honours from his Majesty the King. I refer to His Honour, Sir Atholl Macgregor, who has a name to reveal in, to roll round the tongue like a dainty morsel, a name and personality, which affects me personally in the same manner as I was affected when seeing a Highland regiment, headed by their pipers, swinging down the High Street from our glorious castle, and I will close with the hope that the schoolboys of Edinburgh and of all Scotland will long continue to occupy the high positions in the Empire and world's affairs and will help to provide that guidance which the world so sadly needs today." Mr. Kinghorn concluded.

In replying to the toast of Our Guests, Sir Atholl Macgregor in a witty speech recalled incidents in his earlier days with Herioters and congratulated the members of the Hong Kong Heriot Club on the manner in which they had arranged the function.

Pipe Selections

During the course of the evening pipe selections were rendered by Messrs. Watson and Cumming, while the Haggis was "piped in" in the traditional manner.

The following were the guests present: Sir Atholl Macgregor, Mr. W. J. Carrie, and Dr. Kirk, (George Watson's); Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith, and W. N. Buyers (Morchiston Castle); Dr. J. W. Anderson, (Daniel Stewart's); Mr. D. Black and Mr. H. C. Watson (Royal High); Mr. G. Dalziel, (Edinburgh Institute); Mr. M. Cumming, (Fettes); Mr. R. J. Shrigley (Gillespie's).

There will be a dance at the Cheero Club to-morrow starting at 8.30 p.m. and on Tuesday the weekly whist drive will be held, commencing at 8.30 p.m.

SEVEN TRAINS PER DAY

Double Tenth Holiday Crowds

Owing to the several thousands of people returning from Canton after the "Double Tenth" celebrations, the Kowloon-Canton Railway ran seven trains, including the usual expresses, to and from Canton on Friday and yesterday.

The "Flying Dragon", which was scheduled to arrive at Kowloon at 7.40 p.m. was over an hour late last night, owing to a delay at Shek Lung.

FEARS CLASH IN CAPITAL

Rome: All radio listeners in Italy have been forbidden to tune into foreign stations, according to a new decree issued by the Italian police. Heavy penalties, in addition to confiscation of the radio receiver, will be imposed for the infringement of this decree, which has not been published in the usual manner but brought to the notice of all possessors of radios by police officials going from house to house and demanding a written acknowledgment from the radio owners that they have been acquainted with the provisions of the decree.

The Italian authorities are extremely perturbed by the news about Italy which has been broadcast by the British stations, and the Giornale d'Italia energetically refutes the statement that minifields have been laid outside the entrances to Italian ports.

This had already caused some shipping companies, the journal complains, to change the routes of their vessels and they now no longer call at Italian ports, so that in addition to the economic sanctions, Italy is also threatened with this form of economic isolation.

THE MESSAGE TO AUSTRIA. Vienna: Signor Mussolini has addressed a cordial telegram of thanks to Chancellor Schuschnigg for the "friendly and courageous attitude taken by the Austrian delegate at the League Assembly," which had strengthened relations between both countries and made a deep impression on Italy.

The Austrian representative had not only supported Italy's claims, but had served in the cause of peace and justice.

TURKISH DEFENCES

Ankara: In a statement on the Straits question, made in the National Assembly, the Turkish Deputy Foreign Minister declared that the present position in the Dardanelles, established by the Straits Convention, was detrimental to the country and that the Dardanelles in particular.

The Turkish Government, he emphasised, would not tire of pointing out the necessity for the completion of the country's defences, nor hesitate in taking the necessary measures should it find itself confronted with an unexpected situation.

UNCERTAINTY AT GENEVA

Geneva: The Co-ordinating Committee, it appears, is still confronted with some difficulties of procedure. It is not yet certain whether the Small Committee's recommendations for forming a special sub-committee of experts for the examination of the problem of import and export sanctions will be adopted.

In any case a considerable difference of opinion is expected to be revealed in the discussion of this question, though no difficulties are anticipated as regards financial sanctions.

The adoption of the United States' list of prohibited exports, is put out in League circles, is not due to any agreement with Washington, this list merely having been chosen because it is the latest of its kind.

CHINESE ADVISER RESIGNS

Unfriendly Attitude Towards Japan

CONNECTION WITH NANKING SEVERED

Nanking, yesterday.

Mr. Thomas F. Millard, former correspondent for the New York Times and later the New York Herald-Tribune, has resigned his post as adviser to the National Government, owing to his unfriendly attitude towards Japan.

In his books on China, Mr. Millard disclosed a tone unfriendly to Japan. Though occupying the post of adviser only, Mr. Millard conducted Chinese propaganda on behalf of the Nanking Government.

It is learned that Mr. Millard will resume journalistic work, although his exact plans have not been divulged.—Union News.

PRESIDENT LIN IN FUKIEN

Visit To Pay Homage To His Ancestors

Shanghai, Yesterday.

The purpose of his trip is to pay homage at his ancestral tombs, it is learned.

President Lin is expected to return to Nanking in about two weeks.—Central News Agency.

Italians, as far as is known by the Abyssinian High Command, official quarters here declared on Friday evening, stressing, however, that Aksum has not yet been occupied by the Italians.

It is therefore to be assumed that the rumours speaking of the great Abyssinian victory at Adowa, which were prevalent here on Friday morning, lacked foundation. The situation once more shows the extreme difficulty confronting the foreign correspondents here.

Apparently even the Abyssinian High Command does not know clearly what is happening at the front. Telephonic communication with Makala has been interrupted, and news transmission by radio also appears to be working unsatisfactorily. The news obtainable from the southern front is likewise unreliable, and even reports on the events in Addis Ababa itself are contradictory.

NEGUS IN CAPITAL?

Thus it now appears that the Negus is still in Addis Ababa, or in close proximity to the capital, although it had been asserted that he had left for the front by aeroplane.

One hundred European fugitives, including some Britons and Germans, left the country by the same train as carried the Italian Consul from Dabra, Markos and Maglo on Saturday.—Trans-Ocean Service.

HWANGHO CHANGES ITS COURSE

RIVERSIDE LAND WASHED AWAY

FEARS SPREAD THAT MAIN DYKE MAY FALL

Shanghai, Yesterday.

An alarming report which has reached here from the districts in southern Hopei, indicates that the Hwangho there has changed its course and is now flowing southward, with the result that a wide space of accumulated land along the river, measuring more than 500 feet wide, has been washed down by the currents during the past 10 days.

The main body of the river is rushing towards the south main dyke, and the distance between them is now only 220 feet.

A calamitous flood in the area to the south of the river embankment is gravely feared here, in view of the fact that the dyke is thin and feeble.

The Reconstruction Department of the Hopei Provincial Government and the Hwangho Conservancy Commission have been informed of the serious situation and asked to effect emergency strengthening of the dykes, in order to save the main dyke there from total collapse.—Central News Agency.

B.B.C.'S "OBNOXIOUS" BALLADS

Music Professor's Criticisms

DEMAND FOR NATIONAL EFFORTS

London. B.B.C. programmes have few really good English songs, according to Dr. Sydney Northcote, Professor of Singing at the Guildhall School of Music.

Dr. Northcote criticised the B.B.C. when speaking at the Oxford summer course in music and music teaching.

"I wish they would do a little more research into our beautiful English songs and poetry," he said.

Lyrical Poetry

"As it is, obnoxious ballads are far too often repeated. We possess in English lyrical poetry second to none. We, therefore, do not need the professional lyric-writer of unworthy sentiments."

Dr. Northcote said that never since the days of Purcell, had there been such promise and real genius among English composers as there is to-day.

"And yet," he said, "we are still inclined to flock to hear an English singer singing German songs in German or even Italian, when our own composers can do quite as well or even better."

MAN ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Committed For Trial At Old Bailey

London. During the hearing of a bigamy charge at Croydon recently a wife refused to give evidence against her husband, but his sister appeared against him.

The accused man is Robert J. Ford, aged 35, traveller, of Wiltshire-road, Thornton Heath. After the wife had refused to give evidence, his sister spoke of witnessing a marriage in 1925.

Only Six Weeks

Jean Brady, of Grove-road, Thornton Heath, said that she was a barmaid when Ford proposed marriage. They went through a ceremony at Croydon Register Office on May 14. He left her six weeks later, she said, and then she found that he was married.

Ford, who was alleged to have told the police that it would not have happened had his first wife treated him better, was committed for trial at the Old Bailey.

The above group was taken on the occasion when the Chairman and members of May Hall, Hong Kong University gave a welcome party to their new Werden, Mr. A. B. Reynolds, B.A., on October 1 last. Mr. A. B. Reynolds is seated in the centre; on his right is Mr. K. L. Leong (Chairman) and on his left is Mr. J. T. Choo (Hon Secretary).

COMMEMORATING THE DOUBLE TENTH

Dinner Function By Mayor Of Canton

WHOLE OF CONSULAR BODY ENTERTAINED

Canton, Yesterday. A formal dinner party was given by the Hon. Mr. Liu Chiwen, Mayor of Canton, on Thursday at 8 p.m. in celebration of the Double Tenth Festival. All members of the consular body and prominent Government officials attended the party, at which Mayor Liu delivered the following address (interpreted through Dr. Wu Paak Shing):—

Members of the consular body, ladies and gentlemen:

It gives me great pleasure that you have graced this joyous party with your presence. We are gathered here to celebrate the "Double Tenth"—the commemoration of the birth of the Chinese Republic. The present Chinese Republic, as is known to all, has its structure erected entirely on the teachings of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen who, even while breathing his last, importuned and solicited the Chinese people to ally themselves in a common struggle with those nations that treat China as an equal. The teachings of Dr. Sun have the reconstruction of China and the preservation of a lasting world peace as their ulterior object; and it is towards the attainment of this worthy and noble object that the leaders of China are now striving and struggling. In the course of this struggle may all friendly nations lend a sympathetic hand and co-operate with us whenever possible. China is now in an unfavourable environment; and only through patience and hard work, together with close co-operation with friendly nations, can she hope to pass through the present travail and be brought to a position of equality among the nations. May we all, well-wishers of China, now drink to the future of the Chinese Republic.—Central Press.

Good public order was preserved throughout the day. The celebration will finish to-day.—Central Press.

Colony's Volunteer Air Arm

The Government Gazette contains the draft of an Ordinance to amend the Volunteer Ordinance, the principal object of which is to substitute an Air Arm for the Flying Section of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps and to enact provision in the Volunteer Ordinance, 1933, and the regulations thereunder appropriate to this unit. The cost of training members of this unit will be considerable. It is considered therefore that they should engage to serve for periods of four years at a time, and not merely for three years as is the case in the other Corps units.

If they cease, without permission, to serve in the unit during any such period they will be required to refund the cost to the Government of their training in that period up to a maximum of $600. Similarly they will be required to make a refund in re-

PLAIN VIEW PAYS TWO SUPPORTERS $1,416.80 IN "DOUBLE"

Saucy Face Runs Unplaced WADEBRIDGE AGAIN DISAPPOINTS

MR. FROST RIDES FOUR WINNERS

MR. WOOD'S FIRST WIN

THE Double Tenth Race Meeting was concluded yesterday in fine weather, but before a disappointingly small crowd. No records were broken—the nearest approach was Liberty Bay's mile in 1.55.1, a fifth of a second outside Diana Bay's record—but the racing was extremely keen and interesting, the highest dividend being $102 on Plain View (Mr. Liang), which, coupled with Great Hall, paid each of his two supporters $1,416.80 in the "Daily Double."

On a day in which two red hot favourites, Saucy Face and Wadebridge, were beaten, Mr. Leo Frost, potential 1935 champion jockey, recorded four wins and two thirds in six starts, while Mr. S. Y. Liang had two firsts in six starts. Mr. R. M. Wood, a novice rider, registered his first win at the Valley when he brought in Wembley Stag in the last race after having secured a second place on King's Bounty earlier in the afternoon. Among the owners Mr. L. Dunbar and Mr. Lan shared the honours with two firsts and a third.

There was only a very small crowd present, though the weather was perfect, for the start of the Kwangtung Handicap, for which there were no fewer than 22 withdrawals, and as a result only $25 was paid out on unplaced starters in the cash sweep.

Mistake Bay, a hot favourite, and Ythan were out of the gate first, but Mr. Grayburn's chestnut faltered after the first furlong and High Speed was the favourite's only challenger. He, however, shot his bolt on the corner into the home straight, and it was all he could do to secure second place by a neck from Soldier of Peace, who surprised by beating out his stable companion, Soldier of China, for third place to pay $19.50.

Mr. Wood Rides Well
Mr. Leo Frost, potential 1935 champion jockey, registered his second win in as many starts when he brought King's Bounty, the favourite, home by a length ahead of King's Bounty in the Kwangtung Handicap after leading all the way.

King's Bounty caused a surprise by filling second place, paying $25. He was third to King's Fancy and Soldier of Germany until coming into the home straight. Mr. Wood, who came within a length of his first win, rode an extremely well-judged race for a novice rider. Bright View, which failed to get away to a good start, owed his third place to the fact that Macaroni, who had won on his last three outings, swerved across the track towards the stands when less than 50 yards from the post and when in a good position to secure second place.

Hot Favourite Unplaced
The first upset of the afternoon was provided in the Katoomba Handicap, Saucy Face, a hot favourite, running nowhere in a field of seven starters.

Southern Cross, perfectly nursed until the home stretch, returned a win dividend of $28.90 for a run only 1.4/5 secs. outside Saucy Face's track record. Coming into the home straight, it looked as if Mr. Frost would register his "hat trick" after shaking off the attentions of Saucy Face, but Night Star faltered over the last furlong and, after being passed by Southern Cross, the second favourite, and Alacrity, just secured third place ahead of Streamline.

Wadebridge Beaten
Another sensational result was witnessed in the Sub-Griffins Autumn Plate when Wadebridge, a red hot favourite, was beaten by a neck by Valley View after having set his own pace throughout. The Lan entry paid $58.90 for his success.

Double Chance, who was favourably placed all the way round, failed to produce a winning finish and secured third place, ahead of Emergency Call. Belmont Star, who moved up to fourth position in the back straight, failed after passing the Rock.

Best Finish Of Afternoon

The best finish of the day was provided in the Kwangtung Handicap when Mr. Frost recorded his third win of the afternoon, riding Great Hall to a neck decision over What A Chance to the pleasure of 118 supporters on the first leg of the "double." Coming into the home straight, What A Chance looked the winner, but in a thrilling finish, he failed to produce that extra bit necessary, while Pride of Tsingtao added his quota to the thrills by an impressive finishing burst which brought him to within a short head of What A Chance.

Racing Boy finished fourth and Gold Coin, a favoured candidate, finished nowhere. Rousseau was walked in, apparently due to lameness.

Liberty Bay's Race
The Liberty Bay race was by no means the procession expected. Soldier of Britain giving the Dunbar crack a good run up to the Rock, the effort was, however, too much for him, and he finished last by a big margin.

In a fast run race—it was only a fifth of a second outside Diana Bay's record—Gladiator produced a fine burst of speed to secure a winning dividend (Liberty Bay was debared from the betting) of $9.30 in a fighting finish with King's Warden, some four lengths behind Liberty Bay.

Three-Figure Dividend

Plain View upset punters in the Kwangtung Handicap when he came through perfectly in the home straight to snatch victory from the pace-making Zero, who found the distance just too far for him. Beating Tiny Star, who also surprised, Plain View paid a win dividend of $102.00 and supplied Mr. Liang with his second win of the afternoon. Glad Eyes also did well to secure fourth place ahead of Partnership.

Young Chap, the favourite, badly disappointed and never looked to be in the race.

Mr. Wood's First Win

Having recorded the first second place in his racing career at the Valley earlier in the afternoon, Mr. Wood followed it up by piloting Wembley Stag, the favourite, to a 1½ lengths win over The Rain Gauge in the Fukien Handicap to break his "duck" at the Valley. The Deemster was given a thrilling struggle by What's The Time, but secured the verdict by a nose.

Detailed results were as follows:

R.E.O.C.A. HOLD FIRST ANNUAL DINNER IN H.K.

"Before I finish, may I draw your attention to R. E. Sunday which is a week tomorrow? We hope that as many Ex-R.E. and Corps Volunteers as possible will attend the Church Parade. We shall be very pleased to see them and their families in the Barnecks afterwards, and again at the R.E. O.C.A. concert in the Garrison Lecture Hall in the evening.

"We have received an allotment of 12 places for members at the Conotaph on Armistice Day. I hope civilian members will take advantage of this. Will those wishing to do so please inform the Hon. Secretary as soon as possible?

"The song sheets which are on the table belong to the Association. Will you please leave them on the table when you leave to-night so that they can be returned.

"The Hon. Secretary, Q. M. S. Staples, has a table next the entrance of this room and will be only too pleased to transact any business, answer any query, and particularly enrol any new member now.

"I should like to draw your attention to the presence of the collecting boxes for the Chelsea Pensioners Fund, and the branch funds. All donations, however small, will be welcome.

The Chairman concluded his speech by giving the toast of "The Corps" and "The Royal Engineers' Old Comrades' Association," after which the toast of "The President" was proposed by Major B. E. O. Dixon, M.C., R.E.

After the match the Shanghai bowlers were entertained to a dinner and dance at the Craigengower Cricket Club.

LINCOLNS UNBEATEN BY EAST LANCES

North played a great game for the East Lances, but Lawton was not as good as usual; he did not swing the ball about sufficiently, and the short passes interchanged between the East Lances players enabled the clever Ridley to nip in and break up movements at the very start. Harmsworth was the best man in the East Lances side; he pulled off some wonderful saves, and the two goals which did beat him would have passed most goalkeepers in the Colony.

Unfortunate Mistake
The first goal was the result of an unfortunate mistake. North, in attempting to clear, sliced the ball towards his own goal and Higgins was quick to dart in and score just beneath the bar. Then, from a corner by Baldry, Swain cleared for Sandford to push the ball past Ash for Ridings to score with a "stinger" which Reed did not see.

After the interval Lawton gave the East Lances the lead with the best goal of the game. Receiving from Ridings with his back to the Lincoln's goal, he pivoted, and, with a terrific "first-timer," crashed the ball home from 25 yards. The East Lances' jubilation was short-lived, however, for five minutes later, just before the whistle, Deeming shot directly at Harmsworth, who punched out only for Higgins to collect and score in the bottom right corner.

Lincoln's—Reed; Edmundson, Ash, Thompson, Deeming, Robson; Clayton, Mulpass, Higgins, Ridley and Baldry. E. Lances—Harmsworth; Swain, Gorman; Smith, Lawton, North, Mather, Horner, Sandford, Ridings and Ratcliffe.

FUSILIERS SWAMP RAILWAY

Score Seven Times Without Reply

On the Railway ground yesterday, the Fusiliers proved themselves far superior to the Railway team, when they won their Third Division soccer fixture by 7 goals to nil.

From the commencement it was apparent that the Fusiliers would dominate play, and goals came from Riley (2), including a penalty, and Tatler before the interval.

With the exception of a few breakaways on the left-wing by Chan Chung, the Railway were penned in their own half on the resumption and goals came from Jones, Tatler (2) and Riley.

Glover's Fine Blocking
Holland and Glover were called on to save their rinks many times and responded extremely well. Glover had to block very often, a shot at which he proved to be almost annoyingly adept, while Holland had to drive too much to be really comfortable.

(Contd. at foot of Preceding Col.)

POLICE SHOULD BEAT LYEMUM THIS AFTERNOON

EASY VICTORY FOR LINCOLNS

EXCITING THIRD DIVISION GAME EXPECTED

Following their fine display against the Fusiliers last week, when they shared four goals, the Police are expected to secure both points in their First Division League soccer encounter against Lyemum this afternoon at Sookunpoo.

The Gunners, although fast settling down as a team, can hardly be expected to withstand the challenge of the Police, who are practically the same combination who played all through last season.

Lincoln's Should Win
In the Second Division to-day the Lincoln's should win comfortably against the Radio, who have lost a number of their men to other teams, including A. K. Omar and Gurbachan Singh, both of whom are now playing for the Saints.

A very good game should be witnessed at Chatham Road where the Sappers and the Medicals clash in the Third Division. Both are of fairly even strength and the game should produce some exciting soccer.

EASTERN IMPROVE

Fusiliers Lead Twice But Held To Draw

TWO GOALS FOR EVANS

An exciting and extremely fast encounter between the Fusiliers and Eastern on the Happy Valley ground yesterday resulted in a draw, both sides scoring twice.

This was a very fair result, both sides providing splendid football throughout, and this, coupled with clean-cut and wholehearted tackling, made the game, from a spectator's point of view, very interesting indeed.

Bell's side waited down quickly, and play during the opening stages was very exciting, with the Fusiliers enjoying slightly the better of the exchanges. A fast rising shot in the first minute from Bumster went very close, the ball just skimming the upright with Ho Choi Yung hopelessly beaten.

The keeper was again tested a few minutes later when he effected a magnificent save from a shot by Greedy. The Eastern then sent in two unsuccessful efforts which Saunders had difficulty in clearing.

The first goal was registered by the Fusiliers, Evans cutting in from the wing to send in a splendid oblique shot which Ho Choi Yung had very little chance of saving. Within six minutes, however, the Eastern, following a brilliant combined movement, had equalised through Sang Ming-sing.

The second half opened with an attack by the Fusiliers, and, during a melee in the goalmouth, the soldiers were awarded a penalty for a foul on Bumster. Evans took the kick, making no mistake with a well placed shot. Eastern were by no means disheartened by this sudden reverse, and, after several determined breakaways, eventually equalised through Chan Ping-lo.

Both sides went all out for the remainder after this, but neither succeeded, and the end came with play as equally as exciting as when the game started.

EUROPEAN POLICE WIN

First Victory Against Air Force

The European Police, newcomers to the Third Division, registered their first win of the season yesterday, when they defeated the Royal Air Force by two goals to nil on the Railway Ground.

The game proved a ding-dong affair, both teams working hard but showing little constructive work. The Police defence was very sound and was able to ward off many good attacks.

Mintoy, in goal, gave a very good display, and showed excellent judgment.

Bone opened the scoring with a long shot, much to the surprise of everyone, and a few minutes before the final whistle, through an infringement, Downey scored the second goal from the penalty spot.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, seen arriving there, was an eager listener as Mr. Anthony Eden, the British delegate, sought desperately in the League of Nations Council at Geneva to head off Italy's African war of conquest.

Leonard and Hussain were two energetic halves, the former supplying many well-judged passes to G. Singh and Fernandes, but Elms, making a welcome reappearance, did not produce his best form.

In the opening moves of an attack, the St. Joseph's forwards were well-nigh unstoppable, but anywhere near goal they broke down badly and dallied about until the Recreio had had time to recover and pack their goal. Most of the shots essayed were blocked before they reached Marques, and the Recreio 'keeper' had a fairly easy time. Fernandes was the fastest forward on view, but he received little support, and with Ward below form, Omar had few chances to show his paces.

St. Joseph's took the lead when Omar sent in a shot from the wing, the ball being diverted past Marques through a misunderstanding between Silva and Bowen.

The Recreio then broke away on the left, and from Alves' centre Castilho sent in a terrific first-time drive from point blank range, but it was brilliantly gathered by Sousa.

Shortly before the interval the Recreio drew level through Castilho, who neatly converted a centre from Alves.

Recreio—R. Marques; Silva, Bowen; Figueiredo, Beltrao, V. Marques; Castilho, Delgado, B. Gossano, Gomes and Alves.

St. Joseph's—B. Souza; S. Souza, Costa; Hussain, Leonard, Elms; Omar, Ward, Singh, L. Souza and Fernandes.

ANDREW CARNEGIE CENTENARY

Celebrations At Dunfermline

SCOTTISH PHILANTHROPIST FROM AMERICA

The magistrates of Dunfermline, the birthplace of Andrew Carnegie, are meeting this month to decide what measures shall be taken to celebrate the Carnegie centenary on November 25.

The suggestion most likely to be adopted is the installation of a stained-glass window in Dunfermline Abbey and a carillon in America, but his effigy in glass will look down on the grave of one of his two life-heres, Robert the Bruce.

Carnegie's other hero who was William Wallace. Pittencrieff Glen, which lay directly in front of his father's house, was one of the hiding places of the Scottish warrior. Carnegie bought the Glen, and Laird of Pittencrieff was his proudest title.

It was from his uncle Lauder, "the man to whom I owe most," that Carnegie learned his hero-worship. It was to his uncle, too, that he went for sympathy when an English schoolboy had taunted him with the remark: "England is far bigger than Scotland."

"Not at all," his uncle comforted him. "If Scotland were rolled out as flat as England, Scotland would be larger."

ALLEGED NUISANCE CHARGED

Boys At Swimming Bath

London. An alleged nuisance to a neighbour caused by the use of a swimming bath at the Harrow Council School for Boys was referred to when a motion to restrain the Middlesex County Council from using the swimming bath at the school came before Mr. Justice Hilbery in the Vacation Court recently.

It was stated that the council had now given undertakings about the use of the bath by the boys. It would be used only at certain times, and such use should involve as little noise as possible.

Counsel for plaintiff agreed to the undertakings, and the case was settled, no order being made.

TYRE STATISTICS

Astounding Results Of Calculations

Statisticians set out to show how the motor-car industry helps other industries. This is how they did it:

A motor-car firm turns out 150,000 new cars in a year. Five tyres each means 750,000 tyres.

In 750,000 tyres 2,737,500 lbs. of rubber would be used and 542,500 lbs. of cotton.

That amount of cotton would come in 1,125 bales from 3,070 acres of cotton plantation.

The statisticians, thus encouraged, went on to work out that if all the tyres were made into one tyre it would be 346 miles in diameter and eighty miles thick. In one revolution it would cover 1,085 miles, and twenty-three turns would take it round the world at the Equator.

Bonney Powell, famous producer of the "Magic Carpet" series of travel pictures, will arrive in Hong Kong in about two weeks' time to make a local film for Fox Films.

"MAGIC CARPET" OF HONG KONG

Details Disclosed By Executives

"SHOOTING" TO COMMENCE WITHIN THREE WEEKS

Hong Kong — or to be more correct what Hollywood producers think Hong Kong should be like — has been represented on the screen several times before, as the background for some dastardly eastern plot, but without bringing any glow of admiration to the cheeks of local audiences.

Now, however, we are to have our due and obtain the recognition the grandeur of our hills and the scenic beauty of our harbour entitle us to — the projected filming of the Colony for the famous and popular Magic Carpet series has passed the discussion stage between the Hong Kong Travel Association and Fox Films Incorporated, and Hollywood's ace producer of this type of picture, Mr. Bonney Powell, is due to arrive in the Colony shortly. "Shooting" is expected to begin within the course of a few weeks.

Lowell Thomas, the film commentator, whose reputation is world-wide, will do the talking in the forthcoming "Magic Carpet" film to be taken in Hong Kong shortly.

When all the necessary "shots" have been taken they will be sent to Hollywood for careful editing, after which they will be ready for the screen. They will then be on view in all parts of the world, it is hoped, in about six months' time.

500 Prints To Be Made

No fewer than 500 prints will be made and one of these will probably gain immortality as it will be sent to the Imperial Institute in London.

Mr. Powell has had extensive experience of filming the type of picture he has undertaken to make in Hong Kong, as he was responsible for four "Magic Carpet" series, made in the Far East, with which local filmgoers are probably familiar — "The Peking Pagoda," "Rickshaw Rhythm," "The Yellow Yangtze" and "The Lure of the Orient." All these films have received acclamations from audiences throughout the world, so we need have no fear that Mr. Powell will do us any injustice.

Mr. Powell was originally going to film for the purpose of the acquisition of the boy king, but when this was postponed it was thought that he would be sent to Ethiopia. We are extremely fortunate in having his services.

Lowell Thomas, the brilliant commentator on "Movietone News," whose crisply humorous observations have gripped audiences throughout the world, will describe the local film.

HIS BAMBOO BICYCLE

Frantisek Lajlo, a one-legged ex-soldier, recently completed a 1,200-mile tour in Czechoslovakia on a thirty-year-old bicycle with a bamboo frame.

He saw the girl come round the opposite corner of the house and slip in through the library window. He had expected that. Ensor's manner when he had looked out into the garden after the rain had told him that it had been arranged that the visitor should come that way. He slipped back to the front of the house and hurried down the drive.

He knew there was a police station a few yards round the corner in the main street. He went in and asked for the inspector in charge.

The inspector in charge was consuming a cup of coffee and a sandwich.

"Well, sir, what can I do for you?"

Wilder's manner showed just a sufficient shade of anxiety.

"Inspector, I'm afraid there may be something wrong at Mr. Ensor's house round the corner. I had an appointment to call at ten o'clock, but I couldn't make anyone hear. There are no lights in the front, and the whole place seems to be deserted."

He paused for a moment.

"My name is Wilder. I am Mr. Ensor's partner. We had important business to discuss to-night. Will you send someone back with me to investigate?"

"I'll come with you myself, sir. I know Mr. Ensor."

The inspector reached for his hat.

They hurried to the house. The dark shape of it loomed out against the pale sky. There seemed to be something particularly black and sinister about it. The inspector rang and knocked loudly. He opened the letter-box and listened. There was no sound in the house.

"Don't like the look of it," he muttered.

He rang again.

"What can have happened to the servants?" Wilder whispered.

"There were three of them."

The inspector turned away from the door.

"I'm going round to the back," he said. "There's something wants looking into here."

They went quietly around the house.

"There's a light in the library," Wilder said softly. "The window is open."

The inspector signed him to silence, and crept noiselessly up to the window. Wilder followed him. They peered round into the room. The body of Ensor was hidden from them by the couch and the armchair he had been sitting on.

The girl was standing at En-sor's desk, rapidly running through the contents of the drawers. It was evident that the knocking at the front door had alarmed her, for she was scattering the papers right and left, pausing once or twice to listen intently. She was wrapped in a dark cloak, and a small black hat framed a face that was strikingly beautiful in spite of its whiteness.

They saw her glance down, shuddering, at something on the floor, her eyes wide with horror. Then the inspector stepped into the room, Wilder behind him.

The girl screamed and shrank back, staring at them terror-stricken.

"What do you want?" she gasped faintly.

Before the inspector could speak a startled shout came from Wilder.

"My God, look there."

He knelt on the floor.

"It's Ensor!" he cried.

"Stabbed!"

The inspector looked down at the huddled figure, then at the white face of the girl.

"From the look of it," he returned grimly, "I should say I want you."

He turned back and, closing the windows, fastened them securely.

"You stay where you are, young lady," he ordered. "Don't move an inch!"

Wilder looked up.

"He's quite dead," he said slowly. He got up unsteadily. For a moment he seemed to be dazed.

"Poor fellow," he muttered. "It's dreadful..."

He turned to the girl.

"In heaven's name, how did you come to do such a terrible thing?"

She came closer to them. There was something very like madness in her eyes.

"I didn't do it!" she cried wildly. "I never touched him!"

Wilder shrugged his shoulders. "I am afraid it seems pretty obvious," he said curtly.

The inspector had been bending over the body. Then he straightened himself and looked steadily at the girl.

"It's my duty to warn you," he said stolidly, "that anything you say may be used in evidence."

She brought her hands together desperately. Her voice rose almost to a scream.

"I tell you I didn't kill him! I swear I didn't! He was lying there when I came in."

The inspector took out his notebook.

"You were going through his papers," he said sharply. "You aren't denying that, I suppose?"

She put a hand on the back of a chair to steady herself. She was shaking pitifully.

"I was looking for something," she murmured weakly.

"What?"

She was silent.

"You'd better not try to hide anything," the inspector warned her. "Your best chance is to tell us the whole truth."

She leant heavily on the chair. "I was looking... for a letter."

"That you had written to Mr. Ensor?"

It seemed for a moment as if she was going to faint. But she controlled herself with a great effort.

"Yes... I wrote it to him."

Then suddenly she stood upright, flooded with passion, her eyes blazing with fierce anger.

"He forced me to come here to-night," she cried. "It was my only chance to get the letter back. He said if I didn't come he'd pass it on to someone else."

Her voice broke.

"He was wicked and cruel," she sobbed. "He didn't care how much unhappiness he brought on other people. I didn't kill him, but I'm glad he's dead!"

Again she faced them defiantly. "You can do what you like to me!" she cried recklessly. "I tell you I'm glad he's dead! I'm glad!"

She covered her face with her hands, sobbing wildly.

"Steady on," the inspector said, not unkindly. "You'd better not talk like that."

He turned to Wilder.

"Well, sir, you were his partner—what do you think about it?"

"I can't understand it," Wilder returned slowly. "I did not know very much about his private life, but I certainly had not grounds for suspecting such things as this lady suggests. It is a complete surprise to me."

The inspector closed his notebook, and put it back in his pocket.

"Suppose she was telling the truth, and he really was lying there when she came in..."

The girl uncovered her face, looking at him eagerly.

"He was!" she cried. "I swear to you he was!"

The inspector silenced her.

"Assuming it to be true for the moment, can you, from your knowledge of him, make any suggestion?"

Wilder shook his head.

"I'm afraid I can't," he said regretfully. "For her own sake I should be glad to be able to think that it was true—but it really seems too plain. Of course, it's possible..."

He made a reluctant gesture. "But as it stands there doesn't seem much room for doubt."

The girl sank weakly into a chair, and again buried her face in her hands. The inspector stood looking down at her for a moment. Then he went nearer to Wilder.

"You feel satisfied about it yourself?" he asked, in a low tone.

"I am afraid I must be," Wilder replied. "I'm sorry for the girl, but it seems a perfectly clear case."

"I admit it's clear enough," the inspector agreed, "and yet—"

He looked at the girl again.

"I don't like it," he confessed frankly. "I can't help feeling there's something deeper in it. I've had a good deal of experience with witnesses and I believe she's telling the truth. The worst of it is, on the face of it I haven't any option but to arrest her and charge her with the murder."

Wilder's face expressed genuine anxiety.

"I don't see how you can help it," he agreed. "I will give you all the assistance I can in any direction, but on the evidence you have now I am afraid you cannot do anything but take her in charge at once."

The inspector scratched his head with his pencil.

"I suppose there's a telephone here, sir?"

"It's in the hall," Wilder replied.

"I wonder if you'd be kind enough," the inspector suggested softly, "to ring up the station—Bernwell 439—and tell Constable Martin to run over to Doctor Singleton's house, and bring him along here at once? I don't want to leave her."

"Certainly," said Wilder.

He went out of the room. When he had closed the door behind him his face was transformed by an expression of savage exultation.

In the reaction of the moment he had to check an inclination to laugh out loud. Luck had been with him all the way, luck and his own astuteness. All he had to do was to play his part out.

He felt no pity for the girl, no remorse. All his life he had been supremely selfish, entirely without scruple. He had always been content if the blame for his own misdoings fell on someone else.

The thought that was uppermost in his mind as he took up the telephone receiver was that now the business was all his; his own defalcations could be covered up; he could use or misuse as he wished.

He gave the inspector's message to the police station, and went back to the room.

The girl had fainted when the inspector told her she would be charged with the murder of George Ensor. When Wilder returned the inspector was trying to revive her with whisky from the bottle on the table, but she did not recover until the doctor and the constable arrived.

"We'll leave Martin here with the doctor, and get her to the station," the inspector said to Wilder. "I'll have to question her pretty fully. Perhaps you wouldn't mind coming, too, in case any questions crop up that you could help us with."

"Certainly I'll come with you," Wilder replied. "I've got my car here. We can run round in it."

The inspector took the girl's arm and led her out of the room. She obeyed mechanically, staring out straight in front of her. She seemed to be dazed and weak.

Wilder opened the front door.

"The car is in the yard," he said. "Ensor did not like cars to be left in front of the house."

They went round to the yard. The girl leant heavily on the inspector's arm. She had almost to be lifted into the back of the car, and sank on to the seat as if exhausted. The inspector shut the door on her and strolled round the front of the car, while Wilder started up the engine.

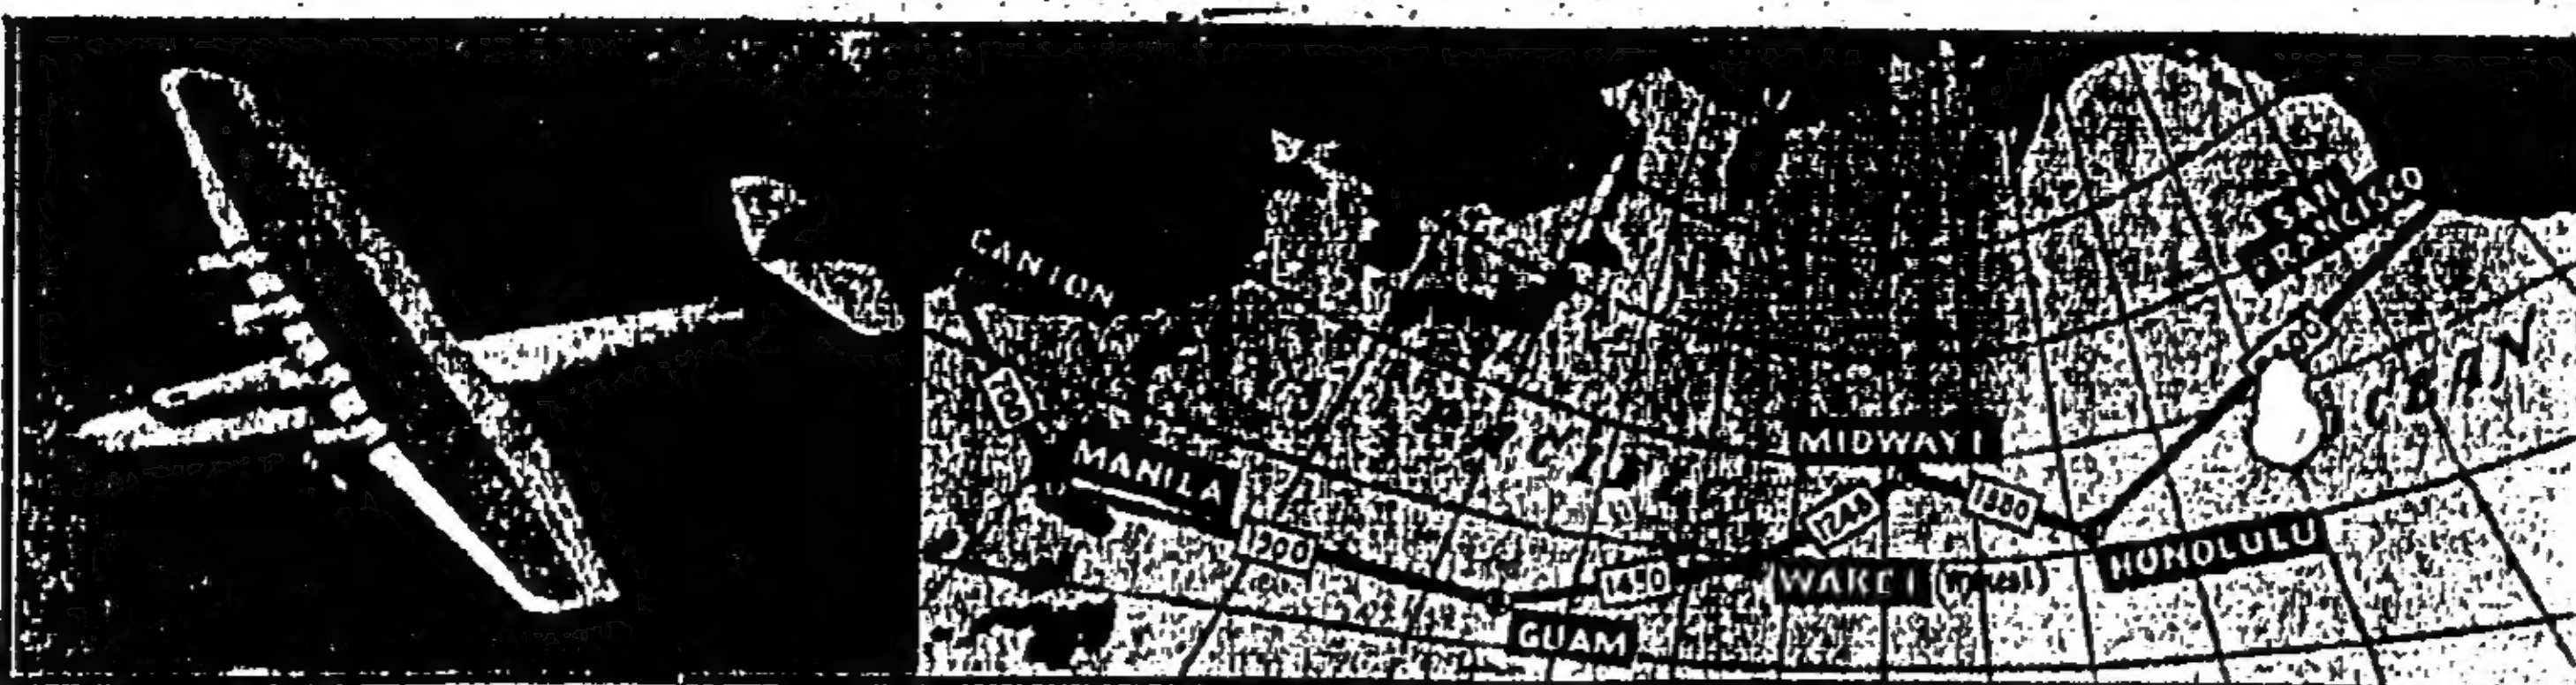

Suddenly he took his electric torch from his pocket and, stooping down, flashed the light under the car.

Wilder jumped out and came to him quickly.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES—No. 176.

ON frequent occasions reference has been made in these notes to the wild strychnine plants and their fruits, but newcomers to the Colony may not be familiar with them.

Strychnos angustiflora is the commonest species. It is a shrubby plant climbing by means of curious curved hook-like tendrils which are modified side shoots. The leaves are in opposite pairs and are very characteristic. Each leaf, yellowish green in colour, has three main veins commencing at the junction of the blade with the petiole and meeting at the tip of the leaf. The conspicuous fruits appear like small oranges, from 2 to 1½ inches across, and contain two or three seeds surrounded by a white pulp. The seeds are deep green, circular, flattened, with a slight prominence on each side, and are highly glossy, appearing like satin; they are very bitter to the taste, as they contain the highly poisonous substance strychnine.

Strychnos paniculata has narrower leaves and smaller berries, crowded towards the ends of the branches. Each berry contains usually one seed. This species occurs on the banks above Middle and South Beaches, Repulse Bay, and near the Kowloon Pass. S. angustiflora is common in many districts; in addition to the above it is common on Stanley Peninsula, at Cape d'Aguilar, Pokfulam, parts of Victoria Peak and in the New Territories, e.g., near Castle Peak, Kam Tin.

Saturday October 5 was one of those unfortunate days that precede a typhoon, when the air is heavy and humid and completely lacking in vitality. And as it happened we had fixed on that date for a visit to Kam Tin in search of certain seeds. We ambled sedately along, following the bank of a large stream, and found the sought-for seed-pods but saw very little of birds or flowers. A few Pond Herons, both Chinese and Fokien, but no Egrets, were seen. A small Bittern flew across the corner of a paddy field; the primaries were black, in striking contrast to the rest of the plumage, which was brownish, chestnut and yellowish brown and left no doubt in our minds that it was the Chinese Little Bittern, Ixobrychus sinensis (Gm.).

Both Chinese Black and Chinese Hair-crested Drongos were seen during the afternoon. The latter species will soon be leaving the Colony on migration south.

There are still a number of this species in Pokfulam, though the Golden Orioles, their nesting companions, migrated to the Philippines and other southern countries a month ago.

Fish And Flowers

Hundreds of small fish were noticed in the stream, fish of several species. At some of these I gazed with eager eye, hoping that some day soon I might be able to test their qualities as fresh water aquarium fishes.

The most interesting flowers seen were those of a species of Clematis. The climbers were literally covered with pure white, star-like, fragrant flowers. With much difficulty and with the aid only of a small penknife a few small plants were grubbed up and subsequently potted out with a view to bringing this attractive, late summer, native-flowering climber into cultivation. The species has not been determined with certainty.

"What are you doing?" demanded sharply.

The inspector straightened himself and put the torch back into his pocket. He looked steadily at Wilder.

"It is nearly an hour, Mr. Wilder," he said quietly, "since the rain stopped. It lasted for about three-quarters of an hour."

"Well?" Wilder said.

The inspector's eyes were fixed on his face.

"It is just over half an hour since you came to the police station."

"Well?" Wilder said again.

The inspector took a step closer to him.

"The ground under the car is perfectly dry," he said slowly. "It was put here before the rain began, Mr. Wilder, you had been at this house not less than an hour and a quarter. It would be interesting to know what you were doing."

Wilder's face blanched. For an instant his head swam.

He stared at the inspector, white horror growing in his face. The unconconsidered trifle...

He stood perfectly still. The inspector's hand closed on his wrist.

"I told you I believed she was speaking the truth..."

He uttered a savage oath, and tried to wrench himself free. He heard the girl scream as the inspector bent him over backwards and pinned him down on the ground.

Wilder jumped out and came to him quickly.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

IF YOUR PARTNER
DOUBLES A SLAM

(By Lieut.-Col. H. M. BEASLEY)

WHAT do you lead if your partner doubles a slam contract?

There are many situations where it is difficult to decide, more especially if your partner has taken no part in the bidding.

The primary purpose of the double is, of course, to convey the information to your partner that some lead is most likely to defeat the contract. Very often the bidding by the opponents will assist you to make the right selection.

Readers who have not had the opportunity of studying the tactics adopted by Messrs. Schenken and Gottlieb, two of the finest players in America, will be interested to know the leads which they recommend against a doubled slam contract. The selection of the lead depends entirely upon the bidding.

Three Points

(a) In the event that Dummy has bid any suit or suits other than the final trump suit, the double demands the lead of the first suit bid by the Dummy.

(b) In the event that the Dummy has not bid any side suit or suits but the final trump suit, the double demands a lead of the first side suit bid by the declarer, and (c) In the event that neither the Dummy nor the declarer has bid any side suits, but our side has, the double demands the lead of one of the unbid suits.

In this rare case it is evident that the leader is obliged to make a guess as to which suit he should lead. If you adopt the above tactics, it is inadvisable to double a slam when you desire a normal lead or when your hand is so strong that you are likely to defeat the contract, regardless of what the opening lead may be.

It is as well to bear in mind that when you double a slam you give away valuable information to your opponent as regards the position of certain high honours, which will assist him rather than impede him in the fulfilment of his contract.

Here are examples of lead-directing doubles against a slam.

N	E	S	W
1H	Pass	2D	Pass
3H	Pass	4H	Pass
5C	Pass	6H	Double

You, West, hold the following hand:—
S—A x x x x
H—x x x
D—
C—x x x x x

In this instance the lead-directing double calls for a Diamond lead, the first and only suit bid by Dummy. You will trump this lead, and with your Ace of Spades you will probably defeat the contract.

Example II.

6C	Pass	Pass	Double

You, West, hold the following hand:—
S—J 10 9 x x x
H—A x x
D—A x
C—x

It is unlikely that the opponents would have bid a slam if they feared an opening lead of a Spade. In the above example there are two unbid side suits. Therefore, the double demands an opening lead of either a Heart or a Diamond.

An opening lead of a spade might give the declarer the opportunity of discarding some losing card in Dummy, and thereby enable him to fulfil his contract.

TALES OF CHINA'S GODDESSESKUAN YIN BEST KNOWN OF THEM ALLSOME STORIES OF MINOR IMMORTALS

(By PHYLLIS JUDY)

OF the many goddesses in the Chinese Pantheon the best known, of course, is Kuan Yin. In her is concentrated all that fancy might attribute to womanhood: she is gentleness and helpfulness personified and is the model of Chinese beauty. Her name, Kuan Yin, means "one who notices or hears the cry, or the prayer, of the world."

Her countenance is radiant as gold, and gentle as the moonbeam; she draws near to the people and the people draw near to her. Some say that she has appeared in 33 different forms, others say 72, and still others claim that there is no limit to the possible incarnations of the Goddess of Mercy. Her story is a long one, but the lesser deities, too, claim much that is of interest.

Tou Mu, the Goddess of the North Star, is worshipped by both the Buddhists and the Taoists, but it was the Taoists who made her a stellar divinity. When Tou Mu attained a thorough understanding of the celestial mysteries she shone with a bright light and was able to cross the seas and pass from the sun to the moon. Her nine sons were said to have become the nine human sovereigns of fabulous antiquity. Soon she was invited to enjoy the delights of Heaven and was placed in a star palace. She is depicted seated on a lotus throne, having three eyes, eighteen arms, and holding various precious objects in her hands. She controls the books of life and death and all who wish to prolong their stay on earth worship at her shrine.

A Taoist Immortal
No system of female asceticism was developed in the Taoist cult and it is remarkable that Ho Hsien Ku, an extremely beautiful maiden, should be among the ranks of the Taoist Immortals. Ho Hsien Ku lived at the time of the Empress Wu of the Tang Dynasty. At her birth six hairs were found growing on the crown of her head, and, following in the line of the extraordinary, she went at an early age to live on a mountain. There she found a mother-of-pearl stone and in a dream a spirit came to her and commanded her to powder and eat the stone if she desired to attain immortality. She followed the spirit's advice and, although her days were passed floating from one mountain peak to another and collecting fruits, she soon found that she had no further need to eat in order to live. Her fame soon spread and reached the ears of Empress Wu, who invited her to court. But while she was journeying there she suddenly disappeared from the view of mortals and became an Immortal. She is always represented as bearing in her hand a lotus blossom, the flower of open-heartedness.Nu Kua, The Creator
Nu Kua, who is said to have been the creator of human beings when the earth first emerged from chaos, is, surprisingly enough, usually represented as a female. According to one account she was the sister and successor of the famous legendary Emperor Fu Hsi. She had a human head and the body of a serpent and possessed all the endowments of a divine sage. She it was who first settled the ordinance of marriage and the relations of the sexes.

Toward the end of her reign one of the Princes, Kung Kung, became a rebel. So ambitious was he that he battled with the God of Fire, and when he was not victorious he banged his head in anger against the Imperfect Mountain. The mountain collapsed, the pillars of Heaven were broken and the corners of the earth gave away. Nu Kua now melted stones of five colours to repair the heavens and cut off the feet of the tortoises to support the corners of the earth. Then she repaired all the damage done by the flood waters. According to another account Nu and Kua were brother and sister. At the creation, they found themselves the only two human beings in existence, so they prayed: "If thou, O God, hast sent us to be man and wife, the smoke of our sacrifice will stay in one place, but if not, it will be scattered." Of course the smoke remained stationary.

Goddess Of Lightning
Lightning is regarded by the Chinese as feminine because it is supposed to come from the earth, which is of the Yin, or female, principle. Hence the divinity is represented as a female figure, Shien Mu, Goddess of Lightning. Clad in gorgeous robes of blue, green, red and white, she holds in either hand a mirror flashing two broad streams of light. With these mirrors she flashes the light so that the God of Thunder can find his way in the dark and strike his intended victim.

An attractive figure of olden myths is Yao, the Fairy of the Wu Shan Mountains. Yao, a celestial goddess and voluptuously fair, has for ages occupied a prominent position in poetry; for it is she who gave rise to the famous legend of "Clouds and Rain," a poetic term for the most intimate rites of love. When a prince once visited the Kao Tung Mountains, and being weary, fell asleep, he was visited by an exquisitely appealing damsel who spoke to him in an alluring voice. In the morning just as she was about to leave, she sang:

"My home is on the summit side of Mount Wu,
And I dwell on the peaks of Kao Tung;
At dawn I marshal the morning clouds,
At night I summon the rain;
Every morn and every night, at the Bright Tower's foot."Story Of Lung Yu
There is a picturesque tale told of Lung Yu, a princess of the Chou Dynasty. She astonished her royal father by falling in love with a young officer and demanding to marry him. The only reason she could give for her desire was that the officer played the flute so beautifully. So, when the two were married they spent most of their time playing musical instruments. Such was the charm and beauty of their notes that all kinds of birds came to sing and dance round the young couple.

One day they were surprised to see two birds of rare beauty descending from the clouds. They sang and danced most wonderfully to the strains of the flute and when the lovers went to greet them they crouched down invitingly. Without hesitation the young couple mounted upon their backs and the birds flew into the air, bearing them swiftly to the Palaces of the Western Paradise. And until they were out of sight in the clouds the lovers sent down lovely strains of farewell music to the King who watched them from below.

DOUBLE TENTH CELEBRATION IN HONAM SUBURB

Crowds From Country Watch Parades

NUMEROUS ACCIDENTS, SIX DEATHS

(From Our Own Correspondent) Canton, Yesterday. The Double-Tenth celebration continued to-day when the procession wound its way across the Pearl River Bridge to Honam suburb. As previously, the streets through which the procession passed were lined with people craning their necks to watch the show.

Vehicular traffic was suspended in the streets traversed by the procession. There was nothing to be seen to compare with the Silver Jubilee in Hong Kong, but to those folks from the country, who formed the majority of the visitors, it was a great spectacle.

Last night the Bund, Tai Ping Road and Wai Fook Road were congested with humanity waiting to see the lantern procession. There were numerous accidents and six deaths caused by stampedes and rushes. Extra policemen and gendarmes were posted in the principal streets to preserve order, while ambulances and first-aid staff stood by in case of emergency.

The object of reviving prosperity has failed to materialise, while wage-earners have spent a good deal of money in entertaining their visiting relatives and friends.

A similar decision was reached in London on Friday at a private meeting of the members of the Rubber Growers' Association, who are directly interested in the plan.—Reuter.

A previous message stated: The International Rubber Association has summoned an extraordinary general meeting for October 11, according to reports that centre on an order to discuss the plan for purchase of export licences for 20,000 tons of rubber.

It is believed that the Government representative intends to appeal for co-operation of the growers for this task.

These four officials are Yang Hsu-yuan, Wong Hsu-en, Chu Tsing-yang and Chao Kwei-chu. They will be sent to competent authorities for punishment.
